

KAROLYI SPEAKS, HIS COMPANIONS SHOUTED DOWN

Hungarian Hall in a Tumult
When 400 of Count's Countrymen Refuse to Hear 'Communists.'

IT TURNS OUT TO BE A REAL FORUM

Former President Unable to Quiet Crowd Long Enough to Be Introduced by Chicagoan

Tumultuous scenes occurred in Hungarian Hall, 1921 South Ninth street, yesterday afternoon, when part of a gathering of 400, assembled to hear Count Michael Karolyi, former President of Hungary, refused to listen to out-of-town speakers who shared the platform with him.

In fiery speeches in the Magyar tongue, the objectors charged that the visiting speakers were Communists, and they declared that the Communists were in control of the Count's anti-Horthy League, here and throughout the country. They complained loudly of the distribution of the League's paper, the "New York Hungarian Communist," and they demanded that the paper be discontinued.

Count Karolyi, who two weeks before addressed a decorous and academic meeting of the St. Louis Forum at the Odeon, found himself in a very different atmosphere at the South Side hall. His countrymen put on a real forum, and his efforts to pacify them were as vain as his attempt, 11 years ago, to stand between the Red Terror and the White Terror in his own land.

Came to Hear Karolyi. The objectors said they would listen to Karolyi—that was what they had come for. But they would not listen to Aurel Leitner of Chicago, who tried to introduce the Count. Leitner, a native of Hungary, and his efforts to divide the floor, in which Michael Somogyi, chemist of Jewish Hungarian descent, took the lead. The chairman, Karl Schaffitz, a barber, mauled the table with his gavel in vain, and Count Karolyi, waving his hand in the effort to still the din, succeeded only in upsetting a glass of water on the chairman.

Members of the local Arrangements Committee paced the aisles, trying to still the interrupters, but several of the latter were of impressive size that the committee did not undertake to put anyone out. The police, who attended Karolyi's pink-tea meeting at the Odeon in large numbers, were not represented at this one, and those in charge had not seen fit to invite them. Although, at times, the nearby city hospital seemed to be opening its doors, the afternoon passed without physical violence.

Karolyi's main address, an hour and 15 minutes in length, was the only hush in the uproar of denunciation and strife, which began with the call to "order" at 3:40 and lasted until the Count had departed, at 6:30, for a dinner in Granite City.

Another Hall Suggested. Chairman Schaffitz had hardly begun his speech when the shouts of interruption and protest began. When he introduced Leitner, the objectors demanded that he hear Karolyi at once. Leitner, persistent and eloquent, insisted on being heard. He was told, in equally eloquent passages from the floor, that he could exercise his right of free speech by hiring a hall of his own. "We didn't come to hear you—let's hear Karolyi," the objectors said.

Somogyi, at the height of the discussion, stepped forward to the place in front of the platform. He made his protest against the distribution of the Communist paper, "Uj Flore" (New Forward), and said that, while nearly all St. Louis Hungarians were against the Horthy dictatorship, they would not remain in an organization which was represented by the New York paper. He was applauded by some of those wearing the Anti-Horthy League's buttons, while others hissed and shouted.

Calman Kaldor, editor of the St. Louis Hungarian paper, made the most impassioned speech of the day, defending himself against the charge of affiliation with an Eastern clerical group which supports Horthy. Louis Kovacs of New York, who was on the platform with Leitner through the meeting, spoke in answer to Kaldor and Somogyi. Leitner was the author of the article attacking Kaldor, in "Uj Flore." He said before the meeting that Count Karolyi was not a Communist, but that Communists were not excluded from the Anti-Horthy League. Karolyi's wish to unite all elements of opposition to the dictatorship.

Count Karolyi tried to act as moderator of the debate, and made a few short talks, in which he professed to regard the disturbance as a local quarrel, the details of which did not concern him. The young man heckled him with the charge of treason, of which Karolyi has been convicted by the Horthy Government, causing his exile and the confiscation of his large estates. The treason consisted in wartime pacifism and efforts for severance of Hungary from the Austro-German combination, and for separate peace with the allies. This question roused the hitherto calm Karolyi into his most vigorous utterance of the day.

"First," said Karolyi, "let them excommunicate Emperor-King Charles, and try him for treason. He sent his cousin, Prince Sixtus, to seek a separate peace. Then, when they have hanged him, they can hang me."

Count Karolyi's Address. In his main address, Count Karolyi described the feudal conditions of landholding by the nobility and the church, still prevailing in Hungary, and his efforts to divide the land. He said Hungary, with its present narrow boundaries and 8,000,000 inhabitants, is in an impossible economic position, and that the condition of farm labor is deplorable, while there is little change of industrial growth. He charged that the Horthy Government had been in league with the Italian Fascist dictatorship, and that Mussolini sent machine guns to Hungary, which were intercepted before reaching him. He said that the Russian Soviet Government had been in league with the Italian Fascist dictatorship, and that Italy and Hungary were exerting pressure on Yugoslavia, which was being forced to accept a Fascist country. He advocated overthrow of Fascism and the establishment of a republican government, not on the Soviet basis, but on the basis of the League of Nations. He said that the Russian Soviet Government was striving for good relations with it and other nations. As in his Odeon speech, Karolyi said he was "neither a Bolshevik nor a Bolshevik-sater."

After the Granite City meeting, Count Karolyi left for Columbus, O. He spoke at a large meeting in Flint, Mich., before coming here.

Young Communists Hold Meeting to Smash Boy Scouts. The Young Pioneers of America, a junior branch of the Communist party, held a meeting yesterday at 143 North Garfield avenue for the avowed purpose of "smashing the Boy Scouts and counteracting the effect of the Boy Scout Circus, held at the Arena Friday and Saturday."

About 20 children, mostly under 15 years old, and including some Negroes, were present and a 15-year-old girl, as president, denounced the Boy Scout organization as "a tool of the bosses." Other young speakers criticized the public school system, the motion picture industry and child labor. An elderly man discussed Karl Marx and his theory of socialism.

NYE FOR INQUIRY INTO ACTIVITIES OF THE GRAIN TRADE

Proposes Investigation of Whether It Has Conspired to Destroy Farm Relief
Act's Effectiveness.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Investigation by the Senate Agriculture Committee whether the grain trade has conspired to destroy the effectiveness of the farm relief act was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota.

The resolution also would provide that the Senate determine whether the Farm Board has been "fairly interpreting" the farm relief act and carrying out its purposes.

The investigation would be conducted by the Senate Agriculture Committee which would be authorized to subpoena directors and officers of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation and other witnesses.

The committee also would be directed to determine whether the grain trade has instigated efforts in the world market which would "tend to depress the world market for American agricultural products and to reflect such depression upon the domestic market for the purpose of discrediting the Farm Board."

Inquiry as to whether the grain trade has been aided by banking or credit institutions or other interests "in any way associated with such institutions" also would be authorized.

Chairman McNary of the Agriculture Committee later announced that the Nye measure would be considered by the committee at a special meeting tomorrow.

McNary and Nye agreed that the committee would be employed to inquire into every agricultural commodity.

In introducing the resolution, Nye asserted that the conference held Saturday in Chicago had "destroyed confidence." He made this statement after reading a telegram received last Thursday from the Farmers' Union of the Northwest, which said Chairman Legge of the Farm Board had "proved himself a champion of the farmer and an American statesman."

Chicago Futures 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 Cents. By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, March 3.—Wheat futures reacted 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 cents today to the post-market announcement Saturday that the Government's grain trading agency had abandoned the policy of buying cash wheat from the farmers at a fixed price.

The final prices today were nearly 10 cents under the basis on which the Farmers' National Grain Corporation will continue to lend money for the old wheat crop until July 1, but which will no longer be used as a purchase price. Closing wheat futures quotations were: March, $1.08 1/2; May, $1.13 1/2 to $1.13 3/4; July, $1.10 to $1.10 1/2; September, $1.11 1/2 to $1.12.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 3.—During the showing last night of a picture two unmasked robbers entered the private office of Manager Lon Cox of the Strand Theater, and robbed him of the week-end receipts of the Strand and State theaters, approximately $1500, Cox reported. The robbers bound Cox with wire. He attracted and usher who released him.

Whatever slight difference may appear in the tone adopted by the French delegation will be due primarily to Briand's direction of negotiations on behalf of France and to the slight shift toward the Left in the Government majority. The French delegation will emphasize the importance of security agreements and stress the dependence of the League of Nations on the eventual general disarmament conference at Geneva.

The state of mind in which the French delegation will return to London is thus expressed in Tardieu's immediate entourage: "If the three principal naval powers, as seems probable, are approaching an understanding among themselves on a basis which means no radical changes in the building programs with which they arrived at London, they can hardly expect us to make a big cut just because they ask us to do it."

"True, we would not be helping either, but we would also not be prejudiced in our position before the general disarmament conference at Geneva, which, after all, engages all interests, as we will be there ready to make radical cuts in land and air as well as in naval forces, based on binding arbitration agreements and the obligation of all signers to uphold a state of peace."

GASTONIA TRIAL REOPENS AFTER FOUR-DAY RECESS

Witness Testifies Mrs. Wiggins Was Shot at Moment of Auto Crash.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 3.—After a four-day recess, caused by the illness of one of the defendants, the trial of five Gastonia textile workers charged with murder of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, Bessemer City textile union member, was reopened today.

The prosecution at once launched into the presentation of its final witnesses, Bob Alexander, a textile worker, being first called.

Alexander testified he was riding in a truck with Mrs. Wiggins and 21 other textile workers when the truck crashed into an automobile which had stopped suddenly in front of them. The shot struck Mrs. Wiggins at the moment of the crash, he said.

This shot was followed by a volley of shots and he fled to a nearby wood, Alexander testified.

Charles J. Gallagher, printing salesman for the Carondelet News, and for 30 years a familiar figure at the City Hall, died at St. Luke's Hospital today of a blood clot on the brain.

Mr. Gallagher, who was 62 years old, was operated on nine days ago for a stomach ailment. Today he considered himself well enough to get out of bed and walk around his room. While he was moving about he fell, unconscious, to the floor and died a few minutes later.

Mr. Gallagher was well known to officials of half a dozen city administrations, with some of whom he came into contact by virtue of his position as a printing salesman. He was regarded as a keen political observer.

For many years he was chief salesman for the Woodward-Tierman Printing Co., but resigned during a printers' strike eight years ago. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lydia Hardy Gallagher, daughter of the late James Hardy, once a liveryman well known in local politics, and five sisters, Hannah, Winifred, Rose, Gallagher, Mrs. James P. Keane and Mrs. Hugh H. Stewart.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

SECRETARY ADAMS FORESEES RESULTS AT NAVAL PARLEY

Naval Chief, in Radio
Speech From London, Says Only Time Has Been Lost at London.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Expressing optimism over the outcome of the five-Power naval conference at London, Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, a delegate to the conference, yesterday told an International Radio audience that "we are here to sit till we settle."

He said the conference had been delayed by the fall of the French Government, but nothing had been lost except time. A few days spent in discussion was nothing as compared to the value of arriving at an agreement, he said.

"It does not cost as much to keep this whole delegation in session as it does to maintain one small cruiser," he added.

Earlier in his speech Secretary Adams said that the naval vessels built by the United States since 1922 constituted "probably the smallest amount of building of any first class navy on record for an eight-year period."

"We are now coming to, if we are not actually at the time," he continued, "when the replacement of aging vessels is upon us, for ships grow old, like other engines and machinery."

"Our task here in London is to fix our program in a proper relation to the programs of other nations and to get all programs fixed as low as compatible with sense and efficiency."

"The American people's support in two things—approval of the lowest limit that can be achieved here consistent with the programs of other nations and with the need, and secondly, the approval of necessary expenditure to build the ships that are agreed upon."

Prospective Buyer Killed in Auto. ROLLA, Mo., March 3.—Gus Johnson, Knobview, Mo., a prospective automobile purchaser, was killed, and William Lewis, driver and salesman, was seriously injured last night when their driver coupe was hit by another car which did not stop. They were left unconscious in a lonely road near St. James and Johnson died here in a hospital later.

Nothing Lost But Time. "We have presented our suggestions of relative programs for our navy, the British and Japanese, and those nations have likewise presented theirs to us. The French have presented their figures and the Italians theirs. As you know, we ourselves and the British are not far apart. We believe that the Japanese are coming nearer to an understanding."

"The reconciliation of British, French and Italians has been delayed by the fall of the French Government, but nothing has been lost by that, except time."

"We have as much time as anybody, and America can afford to show patience, for it is well to remember that several of the other nations represented here have more complicated problems of security than we have, and a few days more or less is nothing compared with the value of arriving at an agreement."

"The French delegation will emphasize the importance of security agreements and stress the dependence of the League of Nations on the eventual general disarmament conference at Geneva."

The state of mind in which the French delegation will return to London is thus expressed in Tardieu's immediate entourage:

"If the three principal naval powers, as seems probable, are approaching an understanding among themselves on a basis which means no radical changes in the building programs with which they arrived at London, they can hardly expect us to make a big cut just because they ask us to do it."

LEAVES PRISON HAS $1,250,000 WHICH WIFE EARNED FOR HIM

Brooklyn Convict Who Owned Surgical Appliance Concern Goes to California.

NEW YORK, March 3.—With approximately $1,250,000 in travelers' checks in his pockets, Charles T. Davis, Brooklyn, is on the way in a private car from Clinton prison, Dannemora, N. Y., to a California ranch.

Davis has just completed eight years of a 10 to 20 years' sentence for shooting to death a detective in Davis' offices in Brooklyn. During his stay in prison his wife, Mrs. Henrietta Davis, built up his surgical appliance business from a $25,000 concern until it brought $2,486,020 in the open market last year.

Disagreement between the husband and wife as to the disposal of the business resulted last Feb. 5 in a court settlement. Mrs. Davis and her two children received part of the assets and the husband received his share.

Mrs. Davis plans to remain in Brooklyn with her younger son, Luther, 15, while the other son, Austin, 21, will live with his father in California.

Davis killed the detective and wounded another and an insurance investigator when the three sought to question him about a stolen automobile.

A solution in a calm and untroubled state of mind.

The strike was made by the prospectors named Gallagher, Augustus and Kovas, pioneer miners of the Ruby camp. The richest dirt was found on Bear Creek, a tributary of Diamond Creek, which empties into Peoria Creek. As they extended their diggings they found rich pay on Diamond Creek and Bear Creek, too, the latter another tributary of Peoria Creek.

They quickly staked out four and a half miles of ground. Along their holdings the gravel was crated more than a foot. From one hole they took out $150 worth of gold.

As word of their fortune extended to Ruby, a small settlement of miners and traders, about 50 miles away, there was a rush. John Wolfe, a miner named Shropshire, and the Greeng brothers reported finding $3 to $6 dirt on Wolf Creek.

$30 a Foot. Then came news from Fairbanks that the diggers had struck bedrock three feet thick that was yielding $30 a foot, and there was a rush to determine how wide the bed was and to stake claims on all the richest ground.

GOLD DEPOSIT YIELDS $30 A CUBIC FOOT

Diggers in New Alaskan Region Hit Bedrock Three Feet Thick.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. SEATTLE, Wash., March 3.—News from Alaska indicates that the gold strike in the Peoria Creek section is one of the richest in years in that territory. The district is near Ruby, half way between Fairbanks and Nome.

In the dead of winter, with temperatures from 10 to 60 degrees below zero, prospectors are mining and flying to the scene to stake claims along three creeks which placer dirt is panning from $3 to $60 a cubic foot in gold.

This far the rush to the new field has been from interior Alaska points. Adventurers in the States have learned to take with reserve stories of rich strikes in the North in areas hard to reach and accessible only at the expense of considerable time and money.

The new find is in area often explored by prospectors who knew how to hunt gold. They had found it in small quantity, but the dirt was not as attractive enough to warrant real workings.

She Had Taken Him in and Protected Him After His Escape Last Year From State Asylum.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DEFIANCE, O., March 3.—Two victims of Hubert Floehr, 60-year-old lunatic who defied 45 armed men, a rapid-fire one-pound army gold gun and a mob of 3000 citizens here last Friday before killing himself, were near death today in Defiance Hospital. The siege lasted five hours.

The body of Mrs. Augusta Floehr, the madman's wife, whose kindness was responsible for Floehr's escape last year, lay in the Mansfield undertaking parlors here, by the side of her husband. Floehr killed her with a bullet through the heart about 1:30 o'clock last Friday, as he opened his attack with firearms on the world at large.

Police Chief Karl Weaner, a fighter hole in his skull, sat up today to tell of the five-hour siege of the lunatic's two-story house, which ended when the core of the house was blown out through the roof by a heavy charge of dynamite, and Floehr turned his 12-caliber automatic pistol on himself.

The dangerously wounded Mrs. William Chappel, 34-year-old salesman, a volunteer in the attack, when Floehr shot in the leg and the abdomen, and Newell Littlefield, 22-year-old student, who was wounded when Floehr shot in the right lung.

Mania Developed After War. Floehr, a native of Germany, came to this country 49 years ago, during the World War he was formerly accused of being pro-German and developed a persecution mania, believing that spies followed him continually and were plotting his death.

Confined in the Ohio State Prison in 1923 at his family's request Floehr escaped early in 1929 and made his way to his home. He lived with his wife and sons to the left, and his sons and sons to the right, and thereafter he plotted the testimony on which he had been committed. Floehr was a brick mason and contractor.

Floehr became unbalanced Friday in a dispute with his wife over the care of their children, who is a school teacher in West Virginia. She had struck her husband in the face with a wet dish rag and he had returned the blow with a brick.

Kills Wife After Dispute. Suddenly entering the dining room he shot his wife through the head. William, the son, ran to the mother's aid, but the father saw him away with a shot. The madman then fled from the house with the police shouting at him and firing the revolver.

William called out warnings to his next door neighbor, Mrs. Knapp, who lives to the south. She fled for cover. Meanwhile Floehr, after barricading the doors, went to the second story and began firing at passers by. Mrs. Knapp, standing on her front porch, was shot in the head by a bullet.

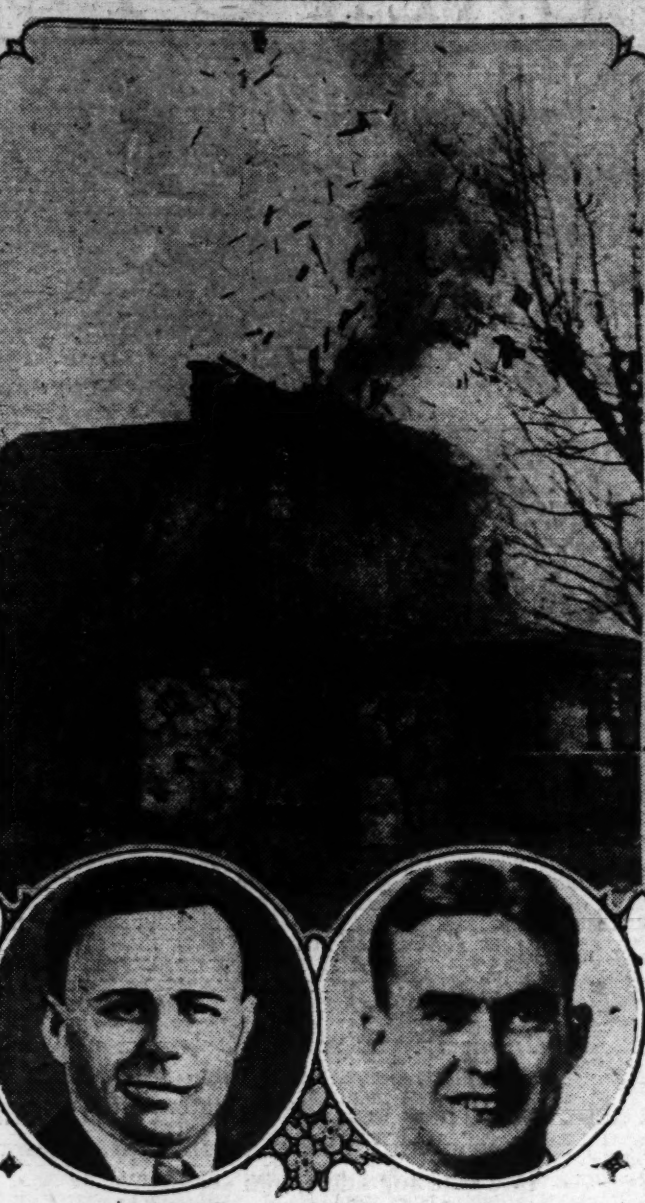

When Chief of Police Weaner arrived in his automobile, he found an armed man on the front porch of the house to see him drawing a bead on him. He fired several shots. Weaner took up a position behind a tree across the street and fired several shots at the madman.

Presently Sheriff Emmett Partee, with several deputies, arrived. They were armed with rifles, shotguns and revolvers. Policemen, armed with tear-gas guns, also were called. While a crowd of several hundred was gathering in the vacant lot opposite Floehr's house, police, deputy sheriffs and townsmen took up positions behind trees and back of Floehr's house and chicken houses, and began to shoot the madman as he stepped from one upstairs window to another, firing at the attackers.

By a concentration of fire from one upstairs room, the attackers were able to hold Floehr's attention while Chief Weaner and three others forced their way through the back door. Finding Mrs. Floehr was dead, Weaner rushed to a landing on a stairway leading to the second story and fired a dozen tear-gas shells into an upper room in which the madman was supposed to be, when he was crawling unseen to another position, shot him in the back.

Field Gun Sent. At this time the crowd outside was excited to 3000. Most of them stood in a meadow across from the house.

Blowing Up Home of Besieged Madman And Two Who Were Wounded in Fight

EXPLOSION OF eight sticks of dynamite in the house of Hubert Floehr, Defiance (O.) madman. Right, Newell Littlefield, Defiance college student, near death with a bullet from Floehr's pistol in his lung. Left, William Chappel, also critically wounded.

Others gathered on a side street overlooking the rear of the house. They shouted encouragement to the attackers. In the front of the crowd were volunteers armed with rifles or revolvers. Chief Weaner, before going to the hospital, asked Capt. Homer Galtz of the National Guard to bring his company's 37-millimeter field piece to the scene.

While the field piece was being mounted about 75 yards north of the house, two parties of attackers held Floehr at bay in the northeast upstairs room. One group raked the windows with fire from the outside, while another group, on the landing inside the house, raked the doorway. Meanwhile, four volunteers carried Mrs. Floehr's body through the front door.

Sheriff Partee now gave the word for everybody to leave the house and Corp. Francis Steele aimed the 37-millimeter gun. Bang! A shell screamed across the road and a hole appeared in the shingled roof of Floehr's dwelling.

"Hit him again," the crowd yelled. "Try another one!" It sounded more like a football game than a fight with a madman. Bang! Another shell whistled and another hole appeared in the roof. The shells, traveling 1300 feet a second, ripped through the north roof, went on through the inner walls of the house, and on out through the south roof. They kept on going. Corp. Steele, under orders, fired a dozen shells, some high and some low. None exploded in the house. They tore through. Meanwhile Floehr was lying low. He gave no sign of life.

Volunteer Dangerously Shot. The attackers held a conference and a plan was evolved to bottle him in one room. A volunteer, armed with a bullet-proof vest, was then to take him prisoner or shoot him down. William Chappel was the volunteer. Several deputies, again entering the house, raked the doors of the upstairs rooms with fire, while Chappel and Partee made their way to the southwest upstairs chamber. Floehr was now cornered in the northwest chamber of the upstairs. Two windows, one from the southwest room and from the northwest room, give on the front of the house, above the roof of the porch. Chappel, with a revolver in either hand, stepped out on the roof of the porch. The crowd began to yell. Chappel stepped across the tin roof to the window of the northwest room. He hit the glass with his revolver. The glass was shattered and fell with a noise. Chappel stepped into the window frame. Chappel apparently glanced into the room and did not see the lunatic. Floehr, however, was lying on the floor. He waited until Chappel stepped across the porch and then he stepped back. Chappel staggered back. He was hit in the leg and another bullet had pierced his stomach.

Chappel reeled back from the window and fell on the roof of the porch. The bulletproof vest had failed. "I'm shot," Chappel called. "Get a ladder." The madman suddenly appeared at the window and fired a shot. The bullet missed Chappel, traveling 50 yards across the street, where it struck Newell Littlefield, Defiance College student. Sheriff Partee rushed out of the southwest window and pulled Chappel inside.

"Burn the house down," the crowd yelled. "Burn the house down," the crowd yelled. "Burn the house down," the crowd yelled.

WATCHMAN TIED, $2000 STOLEN AT NUGENTS' DEPOT

Guard Made to Lie on Floor at 3733 Bell Avenue While Pair Hammer Combination Off Safe.

A private watchman at the relay depot of B. Nugent & Bro. Dry Goods Co., 3733 Bell avenue, was held up and tied early today by two robbers who hammered open a safe and took more than $2000 cash.

Louis Huckshold, the 46-year-old watchman, was making his rounds of the building at 12:45 a. m. when two men, who had climbed in through a window and had hidden in the darkness, confronted him with revolvers. He was tied hand and foot and blindfolded, then made to lie on the office floor. He heard the robbers hammering off the combination of the safe, which yielded the B. C. D. collections of Saturday.

After the robbers left, Huckshold, at 2:45 o'clock, rolled himself to a burglar alarm and set it off, arousing the garage superintendent, Carl Bickel, who resides on the second floor. Bickel untied the watchman and summoned police.

Investigation disclosed the robbers had waited 11 Spring and Pinney avenues, where they telephoned for a taxicab.

In a holdup at the same place Nov. 29 three armed men took $3000 collections from five truck chauffeurs.

Maid, 18, Tied to Chair by Burglars She Surprised.

Miss Mary Krolo, 18-year-old maid in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Scherlin, 5727 Spaulding avenue, was tied by two burglars who broke into her room, was awakened by their noise and walked in on the intruders. They made her sit in a chair and tied her hand and foot. After they escaped, her screams aroused Louis Grotzky, occupant of a second-floor apartment, who released her.

When Mrs. Rose Gershon, 1515A Burd avenue, answered her doorbell at 9:30 p. m. yesterday, she was held up by four men, one showing a revolver, who marched her into a bedroom where her husband, Benjamin, was asleep. They searched his trousers, taking $75, and also removed a $75 ring from his fingers. The robbers tied the Gershons together with bed sheets and departed. The Gershons called to neighbors, who untied them.

Tells of Slugging in Saloon. Found at his home last night with a fractured skull and removed to City Hospital, George Bechtold, 49, 207 Arsenal street, gave this explanation to police: He was sitting alone in his closed saloon at 2870 Missouri avenue, listening to a radio program, when someone sneaked in and struck him from behind, rendering him unconscious. When he recovered his purse containing $40, two checks and lodge papers was missing. However, he still had $25 in his pockets and $10 in his cash register. Police are investigating.

In a holdup last night at the Suttner Drug Co. store, #700 Delmar boulevard, University City, the proprietor, Arthur G. Suttner, and two clerks were lined up by three men who took $541.72 from three cash registers and fled in an automobile driven by an accomplice.

Winter Weather in South. ATLANTA, Ga., March 3.—Winter weather, with piercing winds and a flurry of snow struck the Atlantic Seaboard States. The lowest temperature was reported in the mountains of Western Virginia, with 18 degrees above zero. Snow fell steadily last night in Norton, Va., and Asheville, N. C., and as far west as Knoxville and Nashville, Tenn. Ice-coated highways disrupted traffic in Virginia and caused numerous mishaps. A strong northwest wind carried temperatures below freezing in North Georgia.

Fireman Overcome by Smoke. Walter Steiner of Engine Co. No. 1 in Serious Condition. Walter Steiner, 2443A Wyoming street, a fireman attached to Engine Co. No. 1, was overcome by smoke last night while fighting a fire in a two-story brick building at 2600 South Jefferson avenue. He is in serious condition at City Hospital.

The fire was said to have started in rubbish piled close to a furnace in the basement. The building is occupied by Theodore Witte, who conducts a clothing store on the first floor, living upstairs. Damage was estimated at $500 to the building and $500 to the contents.

OFFICERS, SHOT BY BARRICADED YOUTH, IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Third Recovering From Wounds After Encounter Near Belen, N. M.; Slayer Himself Killed.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 3.—While preparations were being made today to bury Bonifacio Torres, 19 years old, who Saturday held a posse of 200 men at bay in an all-afternoon fight, three of those shot by him were in a hospital here, one of them not expected to recover.

Physicians said Charles Cunningham, Deputy Sheriff, had little chance to recover from a wound in the left lung. He was brought here yesterday from Belen, near the scene of the fight, with Sheriff Ignacio Aragon, who also was shot in the left lung. Aragon's condition is reported to be serious; Daniel Sanchez, Belen marshal, wounded in the thigh and one hand, is recovering.

Torres shot Sanchez as the marshal arrived with Sheriff Aragon to inspect the scene of the fight. The Sheriff and Deputy Baca retreated after Sanchez was wounded and Torres shot Aragon in the back, the bullet lodging in the left lung. Cunningham was shot by Torres as the deputy broke into the house where Torres was barricaded.

A posse attempted all afternoon to dislodge Torres with bullets, dynamite and tear gas. Finally two members of the posse threw gasoline torches into the house, igniting the structure, forcing Torres out. He fled directly into the posse and was shot in the heart.

KIRKWOOD VOTES TOMORROW ON COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

Kirkwood voters in a special election tomorrow will pass upon a proposal to change their form of government, by establishing a city commission instead of the present Board of Aldermen.

If the proposal is approved a mayor and two commissioners will be chosen at the regular election in April. At present the city is governed by a Mayor and 12 Aldermen, two from each of six wards.

The commission form of government has been adopted by Webster Groves and Maplewood.

MOZART OVERTURE CHIEF NUMBER ON 'POP' CONCERT

A typical Sunday afternoon audience heard Eugene Goossens conduct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon at the Orpheum. Goossens displayed a characteristic spirit and finesse and lavished on the tinkling tunes of Massenet the same care employed in delivering Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" overture.

The Mozart number incidentally started the program with the high spot of the afternoon. It was played crisply and firmly. The orchestra also performed well in the "Dance of the Apprentices" and "The Procession of the Maids" from "Die Meistersinger" though these numbers are scarcely suited for a concert program.

With the exception of the above selections the program was well received. It included Massenet's "Scenes Pittoresques" and Saint-Saens' "Wheel of Ophele." At next Sunday afternoon's popular concert, Corinne Frederick will appear as piano soloist, playing a composition by Blanchet—T. B. S.

Street Named for Mrs. Whitney. SUELVIA, Spain, March 3.—The municipality decided to name one of the streets of Suevia for Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, New York sculptor, as a mark of appreciation for her monument to Columbus at Palos.

MAN, 75, STRUCK BY MOTORCYCLE DIES OF INJURIES

Owen Edgar, Run Down at 18th and Olive, Stepped into Path of Machine, Driver Says.

Owen Edgar, 75 years old, died at City Hospital at 4 p. m. today of injuries sustained at noon when he was struck by a motorcycle at Eighteenth street and Olive boulevard.

Howard Bremmer, 4164 Shaw avenue, driver of the motorcycle which is the property of the Eighteenth Street Garage, said Edgar stepped from the south curb into the path of his vehicle which was traveling east in Olive.

Edgar suffered internal injuries, fractures of the pelvis and both legs. He lived at 2452A Caroline street.

Woman, 70, Killed by Auto; Driver Flees.

An open verdict was returned today at a Coroner's inquest in the death of Mrs. Mary Hinton, 70 years old, a widow, of 5724 Hamilton avenue, Jennings, struck last night by an automobile in front of 6517 West Florissant avenue. The driver did not stop.

There were no eyewitnesses. Harry Lohmann, 5279 Alcott avenue, and Louis F. Wiegman, 3222 Labadie avenue, testified they saw the body as they drove toward the city and notified Winifred E. Sheppard, a clerk in the office of Justice of the Peace Weaver, nearby, who called police.

The body was taken to the Baumman Brothers undertaking establishment in Overland. Coroner O'Connell said Mrs. Hinton's skull was fractured and she had suffered internal injuries. She had lived in a cottage at the Hamilton avenue address for several years, making a living by selling furniture polish.

In her stocking $35 in currency was found and in the street nearby a package of meat.

Three Hurt When Auto Hits Safety Zone Beacon.

Gregory Ripley, Alton grocer, and two passengers in his machine were injured early yesterday when he struck a concrete safety zone beacon on Union boulevard and Kensington avenue. Ripley suffered a fractured nose and possible fracture of the skull. Oscar Bock, an accountant, also of Alton, was treated for a fractured right leg and possible fracture of the skull, and Miss Veronica Clark, 1327 Cleveland avenue, East St. Louis, was cut and bruised.

Louis Chilli, 4216 Blaine avenue, suffered a skull injury when struck by a car owned by Harold Mehler, 6065 Wanda avenue, at Kingshighway and Shaw avenue. After his automobile had turned over in a collision with another machine at Union boulevard and Cates avenue, a man who said he was Gus Schunnecht, 4257 Hunt avenue, was pronounced suffering from a skull fracture and acute alcoholism by City Hospital physicians. The other driver, Samuel Schechter, 5872A Theodosia avenue, Mrs. Schechter, their daughter, Berenice, and Harry Schechter, 4063A Shaw avenue, were cut and bruised.

BAARENT TEN BROEK JR., CANDY MERCHANT, DIVORCED

Wife Accuses Him of Cruel Treatment; Alimony Adjusted Out of Court.

Mrs. Alice M. Ten Broek, 5936 Kingsbury boulevard, obtained a divorce from Baarent Ten Broek Jr., candy manufacturer, in Judge Fitzsimmons' Court of Domestic Relations today. She charged general indignities.

Mrs. Ten Broek testified that Ten Broek drank to excess, failed to support her properly, "stayed away almost every night" and once knocked her down and inflicted injuries that required medical attention.

Ten Broek's treatment of his wife was described as "ugly" by a character witness, Mrs. May Sorbith, 3194 Gurney court. The Ten Broeks were married Sept. 5, 1922, and separated Jan. 29, last year. An alimony adjustment has been made. Ten Broek did not appear, but was represented by his attorney.

CHILD STRUCK BY STREET CAR

Alice, 9-year-old daughter of George Reid, 1324 North Seventeenth street, suffered a fractured skull yesterday afternoon when she was knocked to the pavement by a northbound Lee avenue street car, at Fifteenth and Madison streets.

She was accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Landenschlager, 2015A North Broadway, but ran ahead of her to cross the street. Her condition is serious.

NURSE, WITH PISTOL, ROUTS INTRUDER

Awakened With Feeling of Being Strangled and Saw Man Bending Over Her.

Awakened by a strangling sensation, Miss Alpha Allred, 21-year-old student nurse, reached under her pillow for an automatic pistol last night and with one shot routed her assailant, a man thought to be responsible for a recent series of intrusions in nurses' homes.

Miss Allred lives at 4533 McMillan avenue, one of seven residences occupied by members of the nursing staff at Missouri Baptist Hospital. Today she related her experience to a reporter as follows:

"I am on duty at the hospital from 7 p. m. until 7 a. m. I was asleep in my room at 6 p. m. yesterday. My roommate and others living in the house had gone to dinner at the hospital; I was alone. "Suddenly I was awakened by a sensation of being strangled. A tall man was bending over me and pressing his fingers about my throat. I was lying face down and without attempting to get up, I slipped by hand under my pillow and grasped the pistol I got for such an emergency four weeks ago. "The man must have seen my move for he straightened up, jumped over the adjoining bed of my roommate and dashed through the open door. I fired the one bullet I had in the pistol at his head.

"I followed him in my pajamas and dressing gown to the front door, which was open. He got away. "The bullet fired by Miss Allred passed through the door of her room—at a point above the door—above the floor—and lodged in a wall.

"There have been three other intrusions in the nurses' homes; at our house and two other houses," Miss Allred said. "Attempts were made to strangle nurses who were sleeping. Nothing was stolen—we girls have nothing for them to steal. "I came to St. Louis from Tulsa, Ok., a year and a half ago, and have been accustomed to firearms since I was a child. Two weeks ago some man peeped into my window. I tried to throw some hot water on him, out of consideration, but hereafter I'll shoot at their eyes."

GERMAN FILMS SHOW WORLD WAR FIGHTING

Spectators Applaud Pictures of Von Hindenburg, but Not Former Kaiser.

"Behind the German Lines," a war film including official German views of the fighting on the west and east fronts, and of the Austro-Italian campaign, as well as numerous scenes borrowed from Allied countries, was shown last night at Swiss Hall, Arsenal street and Iowa avenue.

About 500 persons saw the presentation and applauded the more spectacular pictures of both the German and American armies on parade and in action. The greatest applause was for Field Marshal von Hindenburg, presented as the savior of East Prussia and as President of the German Republic. Kaiser Wilhelm, shown repeatedly, got not one hand-clap, and views of Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm were received in silence. There was applause for Field Marshal von Mackensen, and a very slight greeting for Gen. Ludendorff, none for President Wilson, Earl Kitchener, Marshal Joffre or Poincare.

The captions, which were in English, spoke of the German army as "our forces," but there was little display of bias. The film was a chronological presentation of the main facts of the war, and there were numerous map views on which the opposing lines were moved about. The well arranged story was marred by a careless presentation, which showed some parts of the film out of their order and brought the conclusion in the middle.

Tragic Misjudgment of Facts. Austro-Hungarian soldiers were shown going to war against Serbia; then the Russian mobilization and the successive stirring scenes in Berlin, Paris and London. The first entry into neutral Belgium was prefaced by the words of Von Bethmann Hollweg, that "Necessity knows no law," and that the "just protest" of Belgium must be disregarded.

The march toward Paris, in its seemingly irresistible force, was seen to halt when the strong forts of Verdun, Nancy and Toul, holding out against attack, were able to release forces for use against the German invasion. The necessary departure of German troops from the west to the east front, to drive the Russians from East Prussia, was offered as another cause of the sudden slowing down of the drive against Paris. Yet the captions gave the "tragic and unfortunate misjudgment of facts by the high command" as the chief reason why Paris was not taken. The order for retirement of the Aisne was pictured as being obeyed with the greatest reluctance.

The abandonment of the drive against the channel ports, through the flooding of a section of Flanders when the Germans had taken Dixmude, was another bitter necessity for the German high command. In contrast, the changing for Hindenburg's victories in East Prussia, and the capture of 90,000 Russians, appeared. The accession of Turkey and the successful defense of the Dardanelles were presented as encouraging circumstances, which, however, did not solve Germany's desperate situation on the west front. The entrance of America, and Hindenburg's failure to divide the British and French forces before the American troops became a factor, followed the historical record.

Few Air Views. The Battle of Jutland was not pictured, and the only naval operations shown were those of the British blockade fleet, German U-boats and American troop transports. The showing of air views was slight. Tank operations and the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty were among the minor details. "Now It Can Be Shown" was the introductory line, and the purpose was expressed in the words of Lincoln, "That these dead may not live in vain." Much of the official matter, picturing the discharge of artillery and the terrific exploits of the enemy's high explosives, was of the sort that became familiar in American and British films during and since the war. Scenes of German home life and a tribute to the sacrifice and labors of German women were interspersed.

The accompanying music was taken from the composers of various belligerent countries, but their national airs were not included. The picture ended with a wreath for the "unknown soldiers" of all countries.

TWO COMMUNIST FACTIONS IN CLASH IN NEW YORK

Hall Is Cleared by the Police After Several Persons Are Injured.

NEW YORK, March 3.—A clash between two communist factions at a meeting in an East Sixty-seventh street hall yesterday resulted in a call for police, who cleared all those present. Glass doors were broken and several persons suffered minor injuries in the scuffle. Three men were arrested.

The meeting was called as a memorial to C. D. Ruthenberg, a founder of the American communist party. Speakers were to have included Benjamin Gitlow, Jay Lovestone, Marion Gray, Edward Walsh, Sasha Zimmerman and Bertram D. Wolfe.

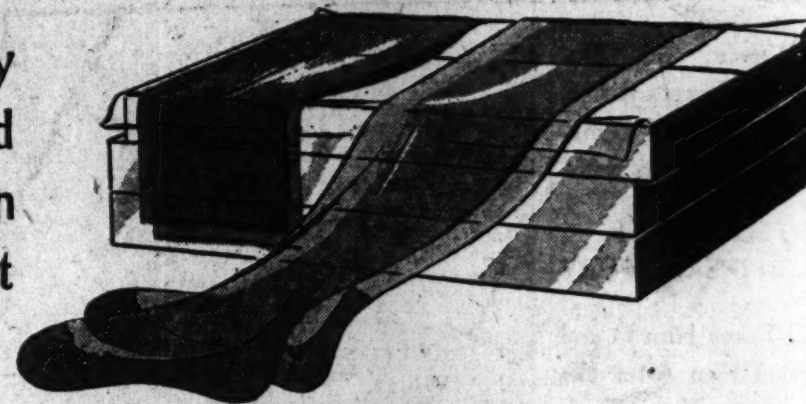

As the speaking began, a faction described by those at the meeting as a "minority group" started a fight. A few police assigned to the hall routed the invaders, but a little later they returned reinforced and a free-for-all ensued. The police telephoned for assistance and the hall was cleared.

ROBBER KIDNAPS GIRL AFTER BEATING ESCORT

Miss Mary McKenna Fights Off
Abductor Who Tried to Attack Her.

Miss Mary McKenna, 18-year-old high school student, residing at 4323 Labadie avenue, early yesterday fought off a highwayman who had kidnaped her after slugging and robbing her escort.

Miss McKenna and Thomas
Painter, 18, of 508 Clark street, St.
Charles, had attended a party at 5417 Clemens avenue. While they were inside, the highwayman hid in their automobile, parked at the curb. When the two entered the car, at 2 o'clock, the robber pressed an automatic pistol against Painter's back and made him drive toward University City. After several blocks, the robber ordered a halt, took $17 from Painter, struck him on the head with the pistol, stunning him, and put him out.

Taking the wheel, the robber drove near Pennsylvania avenue and Dover Court, University City, stopped the car and started to drag
Miss McKenna toward a vacant lot.
She screamed and struck him with her fists. As the headlights of an approaching automobile were seen, her assailant gave up the struggle and fled on foot.

Miss McKenna ran to a nearby residence. Meanwhile, police notified by Painter, were seeking the highwayman. Near the abandoned automobile was the robber's pistol, discarded in flight. The automobile was the property of Painter's father, Dr. F. J. Painter.

The robber was described as about 40 years old, six feet tall and weighing about 200 pounds.

Young Painter was treated at City Hospital for a scalp laceration.

NO BIDS ON CYTRON BUILDING

Premises at 110 North Ninth Offered for Sale by Receiver.

No bids were received when M.
H. Rodemyer, receiver for the Cytron Mortgage Co., offered the company's office building at 110
North Ninth street for sale under foreclosure proceedings, at the old Courthouse today.

Oliver T. Remmers, counsel for the receiver, said one prospect had indicated willingness to pay $125, 000 for the building, but probably changed his mind. Remmers expressed confidence the building would be sold soon.

FLIES GLIDER IN 'DEAD AIR'

Harry Kuchins Performs Stunt at the Scout Circus.

Harry Kuchins, glider enthusiast, demonstrated that a glider can be flown in "dead air" by a flight inside The Arena as a feature of the Boy Scout Circus Saturday night.

Glider's ordinarily are launched into the wind from an elevation.
Kuchins and his glider were propelled into the air by means of elastic bands and flew the length of The Arena oval at an altitude of 10 feet. Kuchins, a furniture manufacturer, is a licensed glider pilot and last year organized the St. Louis Glider Club.

BETTER VISION

If necessary, all luxuries, most pleasant, most useful—corrective could wait, but our eyes—our precious, wonderful eyes—how, for a single hour, could we do without them? Next to life itself, they are of all possessions, most precious.
And yet, if the eyes are not normal, they are under constant strain, although we do not realize it.

If the nerve energy to the eye muscles is insufficient—and it frequently is—headaches, nervousness, and failure result.

Do your eyes ache at night? Does artificial light render vision discomfort? From it's time to relieve the strain. Our expert service is at your command. Read without effort.
Enjoy life.

1200 PERSONS SIGN APPEAL FOR NAVAL REDUCTION

Names Collected by Foreign Policy Association by Telegraph and Cabled to U. S. Delegation.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 3.—A cabled appeal, sent from this city by the Foreign Policy Association over the signatures of 1200 prominent men and women, was in the hands of the American delegation at London today.

The message urged "reduction, not mere limitation" of armaments. It was sent yesterday after the signatures had been authorized within 72 hours through an intensive telegraphic campaign.

The message said that the Kellogg-Brand peace compact outlawing war should guide the conference. The message reminded the delegates that President Hoover, in his Armistice day speech, had said that this country would match the naval reduction of any other nation, and added the warning that the failure of the conference would have a calamitous effect on American public opinion.

The message was signed by eight Governors—of California, Minnesota, Utah, Arizona, Idaho, Tennessee, Virginia and Kentucky—by 212 presidents of universities and colleges, by leaders of women's and men's organizations, by actors and actresses, authors and judges.

A committee of four acted for the Foreign Policy Association in the formulation of plans and writing of the message. Raymond B. Fiedler, Prof. James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and James G. McDonald, director of the association.

The signers included Miss Jane Addams, Robert E. Swain, president of Leland Stanford University; Horace D. Taft, Gardner Cowles, publisher of the Des Moines Register; William Allen White, Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago; Arthur S. Pease, president of Amherst College; Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan; Chief Justice Callaway of the Montana Supreme Court; Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; Zona Gale and Alexander McCall-John, Mrs. Mason C. Alderman, president of the Council of Clubs, Kansas City; John F. Herget, president of William Jewell College; Mrs. Benjamin S. Brown, president of Women's International Missionary Council, Kansas City; the Rev. Claudius P. Spencer, editor Central Christian Advocate, Kansas City; Prof. James W. Chalmers, Department of Political Science, University of Illinois; and George M. Pottern, president Shortleiff College.

The following St. Louisans signed the appeal: The Rev. Karl M. Block, Arthur Bostwick, the Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, the Rev. M. Ashby Jones, the Rev. John W. MacIvor, Dean William Scarlett, Rabbi Samuel Thurman and George J. Throop, chancellor, Washington University.

PATROLMEN KILL BURGLAR AFTER FRIEND BETRAYS HIM

Police Shoot Man Kneeling in Front of Safe With Kit of Tools.

By the Associated Press.
DENVER, Colo., March 3.—Betrayed by a friend, William de Marko, 25 years old, was shot and killed by two Denver patrolmen yesterday as he knelt in front of a safe with a kit of tools, in the office of the Puritan Products Co.

The man who informed police of De Marko's intent to rob the safe, H. M. Erickson, 25, is in jail, booked for investigation. Police said Erickson told them that he had planned to aid De Marko in robbing the safe but changed his mind.

As De Marko knelt in front of the safe, an officer switched on a light. De Marko turned, according to the police report, and made a motion towards his pocket as if to draw a gun. Patrolmen Thomas A. Leahy and A. E. Pyles opened fire. No gun was found on his body.

De Marko, his wife and 4-month-old child had planned to leave Denver today with Erickson, on a trip to Lorain, O., to visit De Marko's father, James de Marko.

FIRE DESTROYS 75 AUTOS

Cause of Blaze That Burns Baltimore Garage Undetermined.
BALTIMORE, Md., March 3.—Fire of undetermined origin yesterday destroyed the four-story brick automobile service station and storehouse of Ditch Bowers & Taylor, Inc., at Mont Royal and North avenue. Between 75 and 100 new automobiles on the top floor was burnt.

The fire was discovered by a Negro who ran to a fire station in the same block and gave the alarm. The flames spread rapidly, due, fireman said, to the oil-soaked floors.

ATLANTA MAYOR VISITS HERE

Mayor Ike N. Ragsdale of Atlanta, Ga., who is visiting a daughter, Mrs. J. B. Rutledge, 7112 Northmoor drive, declined today to comment on the report of the Fulton County grand jury which indicted him and indicted some members of his administration on graft charges.

"I'll be home tomorrow," he said, "and I'll have something to say then."

TWO GIRLS SLAIN BY REJECTED SUITOR

Man Shot and Slayer Beaten Unconscious Following Wedding at Lowell, Mass.

By the Associated Press.
LOWELL, Mass., March 2.—Two girls were shot to death and a man wounded in the leg last night by a rejected suitor of one of the girls, who yesterday was a bridesmaid at a wedding. The suitor himself later was beaten over the head and taken unconscious to a hospital.

The dead: Angelina Rodriguez, 17 years old, of Boston, and Matilda Silva, 10, of this city, a sister of the bride of yesterday. John Pita of New York City, held by police for the killing, suffered a fracture of the skull and Augustine Abreu was shot in the leg.

Police said Miss Rodriguez was standing on the running board of a parked automobile outside an apartment house. In the auto were the Silva girl and Abreu. While they were talking Pita ran from the house carrying an automatic pistol and shot first Miss Rodriguez, then the girl and finally Abreu. Then he ran back into the house, where police found him lying unconscious on the floor.

Pita, police said, came here yesterday uninvited to the wedding of Matilda Silva's sister and created some disturbance at the ceremony.

RECEIVERSHIP SUIT FILED AGAINST PRINTING CONCERN

Stockholder of the Commercial Co. Alleges President Has Relatives on Payroll at High Salaries.

Suit for receivership was filed in Circuit Court today against the Commercial Printing Co., 19 South Ninth street, by Oliver H. Dreyer, minority stockholder.

Dreyer alleges that Eugene A. Lavat, president, has kept relatives on the payroll at high salaries, naming specifically his daughter, Adele Lovett, and a son-in-law, F. W. L. Haenne. Dreyer also complains that he has not received a notice of a stockholders' meeting for some time, and that the affairs of the company are being mismanaged.

A hearing will be held in Judge Hogan's court Thursday. Lavat could not be reached for a statement.

AUTO DRIVER GETS 6 MONTHS ON THREE FELONY CHARGES

George Zout Pleads Guilty of Drunken Driving, Leaving Scene and Felonious Wounding.

After pleading guilty of drunken driving, leaving the scene of an accident and felonious wounding, George Zout, 20, Russell boulevard, was sentenced by Circuit Judge Calhoun today to six months in the workhouse on each of the three charges, the terms to run concurrently.

Last August 22 Zout drove an automobile which struck and injured Mrs. Ruth Umlauf, 2925 Miami street, at Jefferson and Eads avenues. He drove on, but was chased and captured.

UNION REJECTS WAGE INCREASE

Electrical Workers Said to Have Averted Cleveland Building Tieup.

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., March 2.—A refusal of a wage increase by the Cleveland local of the Electrical Workers' Union was credited today with having averted a tieup of the city's building program. The electrical union turned down higher salaries because of unemployment and a possible "wrong psychological effect on other trades negotiating agreements."

The electrical workers' action was thought to have influenced the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union to table its vote to strike if it did not receive an increase from $12 to $14 a day.

Barber Held Under Sunday Law.

Police who received an anonymous telephone call telling them to go to a barber shop at 4905 Tyrocan avenue yesterday, arrested the proprietor, Albert Slavik, for remaining open on Sunday when they found two customers there.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

Working like the trained hands of a masseur, this famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—in jars and tubes.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

American Auto Assembling

Back to U. S.

By the Associated Press.
SAO PAULO, Brazil, March 2.—Thousands of immigrants who came to Sao Paulo from other states of Brazil and from Eastern Europe have found themselves facing dire poverty in recent weeks because of the coffee crisis.

Those who left the less fertile states in the Northeast have been able to return to their old homes, but the immigrants from Europe are in a serious predicament. Hundreds of them are destitute on the streets.

With the drop in the price of coffee on account of overproduction and the inability of plantation owners in many cases to pay their colons (laborers) because they could not get the necessary advances from the coffee institute, which controls coffee shipments, the laborers faced a serious crisis. Then the coffee crisis caused a general business stagnation throughout the state and the shut-down of factories and curtailment of automobile assembling which meant throwing more workmen out of employment.

American automobile assembling plants and agencies here sent many of their employes back to the United States.

Of all the immigrants, the fate of nearly 40,000 Rumanians, most of them from Bessarabia, has been the worst in recent weeks, according to a survey made by the local press. These Bessarabians arrived here in 1925 and 1926, when the planters paid $18 to recruiting agents in Eastern Europe for each farm laborer landed at Santos.

Many of the Bessarabians had been small proprietors in their own land and expected to be the same in Brazil. When they found they were to be farm laborers at Brazilian wages they refused to go to the interior. Many found work on the roads and others went into factories, managing to save enough from their wages to return home. But thousands went to the coffee plantations where the whole family worked.

After the coffee slump several months ago, the owners decided to cut the wages of their laborers and this determined thousands of workers to return to the countries from which they had come. But there was no Rumanian Consul in Sao Paulo and few Rumanians were able to go to the legation in Rio Janeiro for information and papers.

In these circumstances many were victimized by fellow-countrymen who with shifty pretenses shipping offices and agreed to furnish transportation and fix up all necessary papers for the voyage. Hundreds of homesick Bessarabians paid the prices demanded by the sharpers, only to find they had been fleeced.

Their remaining funds were not enough to buy a passage home. Here was practically unobtainable and they were left on the streets. The authorities are investigating the spurious shipping agencies, but there seems little hope of securing a refund of the money taken from the victims.

LAW PROPOSED TO FIX UTILITY VALUATION BASIS

Suggestion to New York Legislature Follows Lines of I. C. C. and Judge Faris' Opinions in O'Fallon Railroad Case.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—The idea of a legislative formula for fixing rate base valuation of public utilities is gaining ground in this State, where for the last year a special committee of the Legislature has been considering revision of the Public Service Commission law.

In a report to the legislative committee William J. Donovan, its counsel, recommends a plan which in general is based on that first used by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the O'Fallon railroad case and approved in a separate opinion by Federal Judge Faris of St. Louis. The Interstate Commerce Commission recently embodied this method of valuation in a definite formula, which it submitted upon his request to Senator Howell (Rep.) Nebraska, who proposes to introduce a bill in Congress to make it the law.

The Interstate Commerce Commission plan, proposes that as of a certain date all properties of the utilities then existing and used in the public service be valued, taking into consideration reproduction cost and all other elements, which basic valuation would be permanent and not subject to revision, and that thereafter the valuation be increased or decreased only by net cost of property added or taken out. That is, valuation would be increased only by the net amount prudently invested in the property.

Donovan's proposal goes further and would fix the time when the suggested amendment to the Public Service Commission law become effective as the date for determining the basic valuation after which additions would be allowed only for net investment in the property. This is the first official suggestion to make the effective date of the proposed law the dividing line between the two methods of valuation, basing it on logical grounds.

Under this plan, after initial valuation had been fixed determination of future rate bases would be a matter accounting procedure. In the report Donovan makes plain his opinion that the only alternative to public ownership and operation of utilities is a far-reaching change in the regulatory system, coupled with a recognition by public utilities that they are "economic servants" of the public, entrusted with special privileges, and not private industries entitled to earn all the traffic will bear.

The legislative commission is expected to make many recommendations for changes in the Public Service Commission law.

EXPEDITION IN THE SUMMER TO VALLEY OF 10,000 SMOKES

Party Led by Dr. R. F. Griggs Also to Visit Katmai Volcano Region.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 3.—An expedition into the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes and the Katmai volcano region in Alaska during the coming summer to study the closure of great earth wounds caused there by volcanic eruptions, is announced by the National Geographic Society.

The party will be led by Dr. Robert F. Griggs, who discovered the famous valley in 1916, when it was described as a "seething inferno of hot rocks, steam and acid gasses." It was later described as a national monument by President Wilson.

Recent studies, it is said, indicate that many of the world's ore bodies originated under just such conditions as those exemplified in the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes. It is held possible that the vents through which vapor is poured into the valley may be dying out, and eventually will form hot springs like those of the Yellowstone National Park. Temperature studies will be made to compare with data gathered by previous expeditions.

AMERICAN WOMAN GIVES VILLA TO CITY OF ROME

Widow of Former U. S. Embassy Secretary Offers Residence on Janiculum Hill.

ROME, March 3.—The villa Sciarra on Janiculum Hill and $50,000 were offered as a gift to the city of Rome today by Mrs. Henrietta Tower Wurts of Philadelphia. Mrs. Wurts is the widow of the late George W. Wurts, once secretary of the American Embassy here. The offer was made to Premier Mussolini in behalf of Mrs. Wurts by George B. Page, a retired American banker who lives in Rome.

Wurts acquired the villa 20 years ago from Prince Sciarra and lived in it until he was transferred to Leningrad. During the war it was converted into a hospital. It is a reconstructed fifteenth century building, surrounded by an extensive park, and commands a magnificent view of Rome.

PREDICTS GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT

Secretary of Commerce Finds Industrial Slump Inevitable.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 3.—A prediction that American business activity would speed up to a normal rate within two months was made today by Secretary of Commerce Lamont. He said a slowing down in the last three months had not been as extensive as had been feared and that the approach of spring and warm weather would increase employment.

"My own opinion is that during the fore part of this year American industrial enterprise has had inevitably to slow down," he asserted. "That slowing down seems to be passing over and with the usual increase of out of door work in the Northern states as weather conditions moderate we are likely to find the country as a whole enjoying its wonted state of prosperity."

WILLIS ABBOT CRITICIZES PRESS METHODS ON PEACE

Speaking at Principia He Says Papers Should Exalt Naval Parley Prowess.

Willis J. Abbot, a member of the editorial board of the Christian Science Monitor, spoke Saturday night at the Principia, denouncing the influence of the press on international relationships and outlining proposals designed to promote world peace.

Correspondents of American papers abroad too often lack a background of European affairs, he said, and pointed out that the ill-equipped correspondent may contribute to misunderstanding leading to diplomatic complications. Sensational types of papers, Abbot said, may cause international disunion.

The press should regard the London conference, Abbot asserted, "with a friendly eye and kindly attention," exalting its purposes rather than dwelling upon minor setbacks.

Abbot suggested the possibility of the annunciation of a Hoover Doctrine, a presidential proclamation that the United States would support the League of Nations, a nation going to war in violation of the Vienna Peace Pact.

ICE THREATENS TO ISOLATE POINT BARROW FOR SUMMER

Unless Conditions Change, Alaskan Region Faces Scarcity of Food and Fuel.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 3.—A message from the world's most northerly radio station, made public by the War Department, reports that, unless ice conditions change, the inhabitants of the Point Barrow region in Alaska may lose their summer entirely and suffer the privations of an all ice year.

The terse report from Staff Sergeant Stanley H. Morgan, in charge of the tiny radio station facing out the Arctic Ocean, says prevailing winds are "packing ice" along the coast in great solid blocks, forming pressure ridges shallow water and bars 25 to 40 feet high.

Morgan adds that "old timers," basing their predictions on other years when there were no south winds to carry away the great packs, think it possible that no ships can get through, and that the meager supplies freighted by dog teams will necessitate "many hardships due to scarcity of food and fuel."

FASTEST SHIP BUILT IN U. S. FOR FOREIGN TRADE TESTED

Attains Speed Rate of 32 Knots; Will Cut Time to Valparaiso Five Days.

By the Associated Press. ON BOARD THE S. S. SANTA CLARA, March 3.—The new Grace liner Santa Clara, the largest vessel built in this country for the foreign passenger trade, established itself as the fastest in tests off the Delaware Capes today. The ship, which is to be placed in the South American trade with its first voyage from New York, April 19, maintained a speed of 32.5 knots in the tests and in two sprints attained a maximum of 32 knots.

SENATE VOTES TARIFF ON LONG STAPLE COTTON

Viva Voce Decision Confirmed, 49 to 33, When La Follette of Wisconsin Forces a Record Vote.

PRODUCT IS TAKEN OFF THE FREE LIST

Turpentine, Now Duty-Free, Made Subject to 10 Per Cent Duty on Motion of Fletcher of Florida.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 3.—The Senate voted twice today to impose a 7-cent-a-pound tariff on long staple cotton, now on the free list.

On another Southern product, turpentine, a tariff of 10 per cent was voted. This commodity, along with rosin, is now on the free list. Senator Fletcher (Dem.), Fla., proposed the transfer of turpentine to the dutiable list.

The duty on large staple cotton, proposed by Senator Shortridge (Rep.), California, first was approved by a viva voce vote and then on a 49-to-33 record vote. Senator La Follette (Rep.), Wisconsin, demanded the record vote.

All factions split on the record vote, which follows: Republicans, for: Allen, Brookhiser, Capper, Cutting, Foss, Frazier, Glenn, Hatfield, Johnson, Jones, McCullough, McMaster, McMurtry, Norbeck, Nye, Oddie, Phipps, Pine, Robinson of Indiana, Schall, Shortridge, Stewart, Sullivan, Tamm, Tamm of Missouri, Total, 25.

Democrats, for: Ashurst, Black, Bratton, Brock, Broussard, Caraway, Connally, Dill, Fletcher, George, Harrison, Hawes, Hayden, Heflin, McKellar, Pittman, Randall, Sheppard, Steak, Stephens, Thomas of Oklahoma, Trammell and Wheeler. Total, 24.

Grand total, 49. Republicans, against: Bingham, Blaine, Coughens, Dale, Goff, Goldsborough, Green, Grundy, Hale, Hastings, Hebert, Kean, Keyes, La Follette, McNamara, Norris, Patterson, Robison, Smoot, Townsend, Vandenberg and Walcott. Total, 23.

Democrats, against: Copeland, Glass, Overman, Simmons, Smith, Swanson, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh of Massachusetts and Walsh of Montana. Total, 10.

Grand total, 33. The House bill does not carry a duty on long staple cotton. Heflin Proposal Rejected. Senator Heflin (Dem.), Alabama, suggested a rider to the Shortridge proposal to provide a duty of 4 cents a pound on cotton of a staple less than 1 1/2 inches, but the California Senator said he preferred a vote on his amendment without any rider.

Senator Hebert (Rep.), Rhode Island, in opposition, said he had been told by men who had made a life study of the textile industry that a duty on cotton would not switch consumption in this country to the domestic product. An amount equal to that now brought in would still be imported under a protective tariff.

The variety concerned is grown principally in Arizona and California and some in the Mississippi delta. Shortridge said that, while the United States produced far in excess of its demand of short staple cotton, the situation was the reverse with respect to long staple, which is used principally in tire fabric and thread.

He said imports of long staple were increasing, adding that "the imports come from cheap labor countries, chiefly from Egypt and to a large extent from Peru, with which the American farmer can not compete."

Expanding Egyptian Industry. "English capital," he argued, was rapidly expanding the Egyptian industry and making domestic competition increasingly hard. Production of long staple cotton in 1928 in the United States was placed by the California Senator at 660,000 bales, while imports totaled 340,000 bales.

Shortridge told Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, that he believed the tariff would not "unjustly pass any burden on to the manufacturers of tires, thread and textiles."

"Long staple cotton was placed on the protective list in the emergency tariff act of 1921, at 7 cents a pound, and there it should have remained," Shortridge said. "If there was an emergency then there is an emergency now."

ITALY'S CONQUEST OF FEZZAN OPENS NEW TRADE ROUTE

SOUTHERN BOUNDARY OF LIBYA IS FIXED

Line, Left Indefinite by Treaty of 1912, Was Likely to Conflict With French Claims.

By the Associated Press. ROME, March 3.—Great commercial and political importance attaches not only in Italy but in other countries to the Duke of Puglia's capture of the city of Brak, in Fezzan, south of Tripoli, and 450 miles from the North African coast.

On the surface it means that Italy has taken over the whole land of Fezzan, embracing 200,000 square miles. It means that a military operation begun in 1927 has succeeded. The press of Italy has been filled with details of the campaign because of the significance that lies behind these facts.

To Italy Fezzan means a high road to the rich commerce of Central Africa. It lies between the French possessions of Algeria and Tunisia to the west, and British-controlled Egypt to the east, across the Libyan desert. Other French possessions are on the south.

For generations the rich trade of Central Africa has been deflected either to the right or to the left, to Egypt or to Algeria and Tunisia. In consequence, these countries have become wealthy and the central section of North Africa, Libya, has remained poor.

The reason for the stagnation of Libya, of which Fezzan is a part, was the rule of the Turk under the Ottomans. Turkey conquered Libya in 1835. Before Turkish rule Libya was an effective go-between from Central Africa to Italy and Europe. This was true even of Roman times. Under Turkish rule it languished.

Libya was ceded to Italy after the Turko-Italian war of 1912. Two years later Italy started to make her control complete by conquering the natives. In 1914 her conquest was complete, but she was unable to hold it. She withdrew her troops from Africa to rush them to the Austrian frontier. The natives revolted back.

Now, under Mussolini, the conquest is supposedly destined to be permanent. An extensive army is maintained in Libya under command of the Duke of Puglia and Marshal Badoglio, and when the trade routes will be opened to the south. Italy then will bid commerce with regions as far south as Lake Chad. If her trade route scheme works out as she plans, Italian Libya may become as rich as Algeria and Tunis or Egypt.

Political Importance. Politically the occupation of Fezzan is important because it tends to establish the southern boundary of the Italian Libya left somewhat indefinite by the treaty of 1912 and likely to conflict with French claims. The presence of Italian troops on the indefinite frontier will tend to make the border line definite.

Fezzan, moreover, will be a likely stepping stone to further Italian acquisitions in Africa. Italy has bitterly complained since the peace of 1919 that she did not receive any North African colonies, though they had, virtually been promised. She would like to have more of North Africa, or failing that, a strip of territory south from Fezzan right on to the Gulf of Guinea and the Atlantic Ocean.

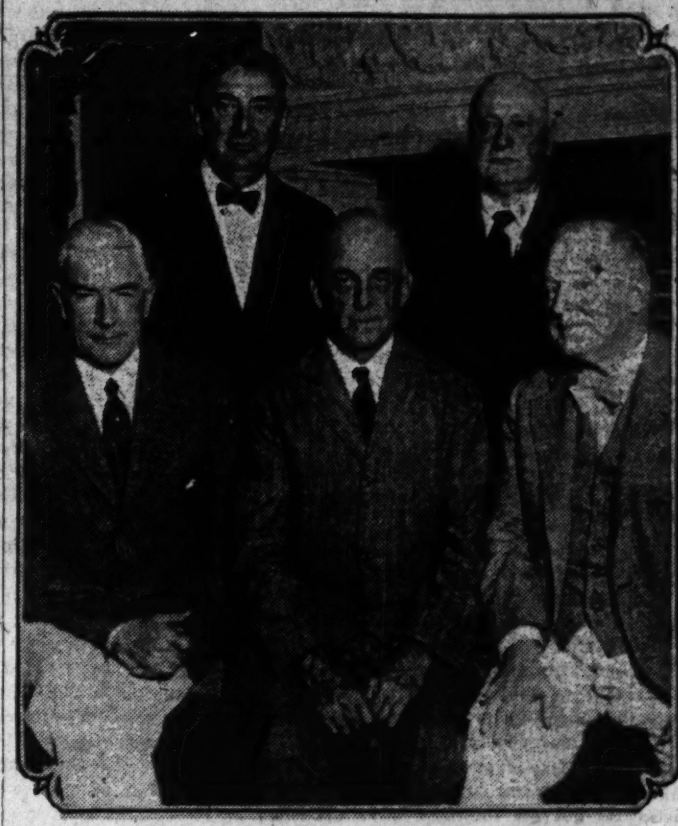

"Paris of the Sahara" The Paris of the Sahara, as the city of Murzuk, in Fezzan, is called, will probably come back to a semblance of its one-time prosperity and fame, in consequence of its occupation by Italian troops.

"The Paris of the Sahara" was once a title of romance and color. Two centuries ago, according to the old records, each year there went to Murzuk from the Mediterranean coast 20 or more caravans, consisting of 400 to 500 camels each. They carried cloth, cotton, sugar, tea, oil, incense, candles, spices, powder, cartridges and firearms.

From the South arrived annually from 10 to 15 caravans each one consisting of more than 2000 camels. They carried elephant ivory, rhinoceros horns, skins, ostrich feathers, animals, gum and rubber and slaves.

"During some months of some years," declare the chronicles, "there were gathered around Murzuk as many as 15,000 camels at one time."

CHARGES U. S. OFFICIAL IN HAITI IS DICTATOR

Spokesman for Several Thousand Citizens Appears Before Hoover Commission

By the Associated Press. PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, March 3.—Charges that Brigadier-General John H. Russell, American High Commissioner in Haiti, was a virtual dictator were made by the Hoover Commission today by Antoine Rigal, president of a group of seven organizations representing several thousand persons.

Rigal also said President Borno was holding office illegally because his father was French, while the Haitian Constitution says that only persons having a Haitian father are eligible for the presidency.

"All officials from the President down, even judges, are nominated and put in office by the executive power which is the high commissioner," said Rigal in his statement to the commission. "President Borno is only a puppet in the hands of High Commissioner Russell and the Council of State serve only as clerks of Borno."

Rigal urged the immediate recall of High Commissioner Russell and the dismissal of the Council of State.

Rigal further declared: "If the COUNCIL OF STATE DARES TO ELECT A PRESIDENT ON APRIL 14 INSTEAD OF PERMITTING A POPULAR ELECTION ON THAT DAY, UNITED STATES MACHINE GUNS WILL SINK ALL HAITIANS IN BLOOD."

Beyrouth Pradel, chairman of the National League of Constitutional action, which was said to represent 150,000 persons, said: "The people know they cannot resist machine guns but rather than live under the regime of another Council of State they would not hesitate to offer their breasts to the guns with the responsibility resting on the United States."

$200,000,000 SPENT IN FRANCE BY U. S. TOURISTS IN YEAR

PARIS, March 3.—Two hundred and twenty thousand Americans visited France last year, according to figures published by the National Office of Tourism, although it is remarked that they did not stay as long as usual and spent less money. The official report shows, nevertheless, that they left $200,000,000 in France—exactly one-third of the total amount spent by foreigners in this country in 1929.

Four hundred thousand British made sojourns of longer than two days in France last year, without counting those who traversed the country on their way elsewhere. Spanish tourists numbered 520,000. Paris alone benefited to the extent of $200,000,000 in 1929 from tourist traffic.

Rigal further declared: "If the

STALIN MODIFIES HIS CAMPAIGN FOR COLLECTIVE FARMS

Russian Communist Party Secretary Warns Comrades Not to Force Peasants Into Co-Operatives.

HALF OF THEM NOW IN THE MOVEMENT

Rich Farmers Kill Cattle to Prevent Them From Falling Into the Hands of Soviet Officials.

By the Associated Press. MOSCOW, March 3.—Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Communist party, has a three-column article in all the Moscow newspapers warning Communist officials that they must slacken their campaign to complete collectivization of agricultural lands.

The article was interpreted in official circles here as an indication that Stalin realized that the collectivization campaign was rousing the peasantry to open hostility in certain cases, especially in districts where Soviet village authorities attempted to force rapid collectivization upon small farmers.

The warning, coming while rich peasants were slaughtering their cattle to prevent the animals from falling into the hands of the Government, as well as committing more violent acts, was regarded as a distinct modification of the Government rural policy. It was interpreted as meaning that the Kremlin had decided the success of the collectivization policy depends largely on the good-will and voluntary consent of the peasantry.

Stalin declared that 50 per cent of the peasants are already embraced in collective farms, under state control, which have produced more than 3,000,000 tons of seed for spring sowing. Stalin pointed out that the success of the Government's rural policy may give rise to overconfidence. He warned Soviet officials and others against too much enthusiasm.

"The success we have had may make some party members drunk and cause them to overestimate their strength and underestimate the power of our enemies," says Stalin's statement. "We must take resolute measures against those party members who indulge in adventurous policies and anti-Leninist views, and who fail to realize the necessity of consolidating our present achievements in collectivization. We cannot collectivize farms by force. This is foolish."

A Defense of Senatorial Districting.

THE present senatorial districting made when Dockery was Governor, seems to be unsatisfactory to the larger portion of Republicans as it permits the State Senate to remain Democratic even when the State goes heavily Republican. It is quite natural for the Republicans to dislike this and to desire to see it changed. It is equally natural for Democrats to be satisfied with it and to desire to see the present arrangement left undisturbed.

Just now, there are going the rounds of the rural Republican press articles intended to create a sentiment for a redistricting of Missouri, and lately Gov. Chaufield expressed himself on the matter.

I think the Governor in patent error when he says: "It is a travesty on the principles of a republic when 55,000 people in one district count as much in the State Senate as do 250,000 people in another district." That this was intended by the framers of our Government is shown by a like condition in Congress.

At the last census, Arizona did not have quite as many inhabitants as the State of New York, nor did New Mexico have as many inhabitants as Pennsylvania, but by the constitutional law of the land each of the named states has just two Senators in Congress, as has every other state, large or small.

Ergo: If it be a "travesty on the principles of a republic" to have this difference in representation of individuals in senatorial districts of Missouri, the fathers and founders of the Republic were in grave error when they made such representation constitutionally correct in the national governing body.

The State Senate is intended as a balance wheel between the weaker and stronger districts of the commonwealth as the national Senate is intended to be in Congress. How else may we maintain anything like a parity of power between the sparsely populated sections of the State and the more densely populated and more powerful cities?

Since he became Governor, I have been led to look over my colored glasses of partisanship and see that the Governor's attitude on public questions, but this is one time when I must disagree, demur and call him to book.

There may be objectionable points in the present districting of the State as regards the Senate's constituency, but the Governor has failed in his diagnosis to touch the infected part.

His lips in his logic and falls down over a fallacy.

Sowing the Wind.

NO MATTER what is happening in Russia, there is no doubt that religion is sowing the wind in America and has become a system of political and social oppression.

For Local Control of Liquor.

TWO letters from the Missouri State Editor to the Post-Dispatch appeared in this column. One feared the return of the saloon and its effect upon her growing boys. The other worried because she was obliged to raise her boy under prohibition. She feared he would kill himself on bootleg gin.

Both have reason to worry. Intoxication has caused more unhappiness, misery and crime than any other one thing in the world, war excepted. No young man is immune to its influence. The liquor traffic is the worst evil in the world today. The problem of how to eradicate it defies solution. Prohibition has failed. Regulation has failed in the past and will in the future. Many believe that governmental control and restricted sales will solve the problem. It will not. After using up their Government allowance, those who wish more liquor will turn to the bootlegger. He will still be with us.

Education will not help. It will not purge from a man a craving for alcohol inbred in him, inherited from generation after generation of liquor-drinking ancestors.

Why not, then, admit that nothing can be done about it and accept the situation as philosophically as we can? Why not repeal the eighteenth amendment and let each city, county and town settle the question locally? The mothers who dread the saloons can then raise their sons in dry territory, and those who fear prohibition can select a wet spot and do likewise.

This will not solve the liquor problem. Nothing can do that. But if my suggestion is carried out, conditions will be no worse than they are now or have been in the past, and I believe a larger proportion of our population will be more contented.

OIL ON THE FREE LIST.

The Senate coalition that is re-writing the tariff bill has refused to put crude oil and petroleum products on the dutiable list. Enlightened public opinion will approve that action.

Admittedly the oil industry is sick. It is suffering, however, from no mysterious, baffling ailment. Its trouble is overproduction. A tariff would not cure that malady. Rather it would aggravate it. If foreign oil were excluded production would logically be stimulated. A home market protected by the tariff tariff proposed by Elmer Thomas, the Democratic Senator from Oklahoma, would, of course, swell the profits of the oil men. But in this instance the matter of public policy must be considered—gravely considered. The solemn item of national safety enters into this equation.

Oil is something more than a commercial product. In world politics it has come to be regarded as the great desideratum. To the chancelleries of the nations oil is what trade routes were in a former time. A country that controlled oil production would, it is contended, be the arbiter of things. In peace it could levy unseasonable tribute. In war it could exercise paralyzing power.

Students of world events have watched with apprehension the oil rivalry between Great Britain and the United States. Some of them say it points to war. They have written books about it. They may be alarmists. Alarmists or not, oil is a natural resource that ought to be conserved and competently regulated as a matter of national prudence and self-preservation.

We have a great deal of oil in the United States. How much nobody knows. Statistics as to oil deposits are short lived. They are continuously being erased or revised by the diamond drill. But production statistics are dependable. They show that the United States is now producing about 72 per cent of the world's oil. And whatever unknown pools remain to be tapped, it is manifest that sometime our supply must be exhausted at the present rate of production and prodigious waste.

Mr. Hoover is keenly aware of the oil situation. He got his information as chairman of President Coolidge's Oil Conservation Board. One of his early executive orders, after becoming President, was to withdraw from lease all of the Government's lands except such areas as Congress had, by mandate, made leaseable. The public will remember, too, his effort to effect a conservation policy through the voluntary association of the oil-producing states, the Governors of which were to draft a practicable formula or working agreement.

Results were disappointing. Oil conservation is still an illusion. But there is nothing illusory about the necessity for such conservation. It is to be hoped that apathetic public opinion will be aroused before it is too late.

The oil industry must within itself, with such help as the Government may properly render, find the solution for its difficulties. It must regulate production. It must reorganize and simplify its labyrinthine and extravagant system of distribution. How it can do those things we do not pretend to say. What is apparent, though, is the fact that a tariff that would shift the cost on the consumer and serve as a license to the oil producers to cut loose and get rich quick with no thought of tomorrow, so far as the country's safety and industrial life are concerned, would be a deadly piece of folly.

That is what the Progressive Republicans and Democrats of the Senate think. They have rightly kept oil on the free list.

MAYOR MILLER'S HOMECOMING.

Returning tomorrow from a month's vacation in Florida, Mayor Miller presumably will be like the giant refreshed.

That will be fortunate, because his associates on the city's Board of Estimate and Apportionment, Comptroller Nolte and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, have decided that the Mayor himself should open the Pitzman survey of the Ryckoff lighting contract and say if it was an honest job. The Mayor has said that the survey would show that Ryckoff was underpaid. As a matter of fact, it will show that the city paid the contractor $100,544.30 for work that was never done.

It is not an enviable task to which the Mayor returns, and he will need to be in rather better form than he was when he pool-pooled the suggestion that there had been any corruption in the lighting contract.

So that is all to the good.

A TEACHER REWARDED.

There is particular timeliness in the award of the medal for distinguished service in education this year to Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart of Frankfort, Ky., a leader in efforts to eliminate illiteracy in the South. The award, announced at the National Education Association's convention, comes simultaneously with the widespread campaign for teaching unlettered adults. Mrs. Stewart has done much toward the success of this work. She originated the "moonlight schools," so called because mountaineers assembled out of doors at night to attend them. An accomplishment in refining certain aspects of education has received recognition heretofore; this award goes to a woman who has opened the field of learning to a class entirely shut off from it previously. Education of illiterates is not a costly process. The State of Georgia has found that it costs only $1 per student to impart the rudiments of reading, writing and arithmetic to its handicapped citizens. Rather, it is a task requiring time, infinite patience and a personality that inspires confidence. For Mrs. Stewart's unselfish efforts in this line, she is eminently deserving of the award that has come to her.

RUSSIA AND THE FOREIGN NOVEL.

Anatoly Lunacharsky, until recently head of education in the Soviet, and now supervisor of the two largest publishing houses in Russia, has opposed himself to the Russian group which would discontinue the translation of American and European novels on the presumption they are filled with capitalist theory and might have an injurious effect on Communist readers.

"We cannot put a Chinese wall between ourselves and the rest of the world so far as culture is concerned," says Lunacharsky, and he points out that such isolation "would be equal to our declaring war against the world's culture." Therefore, the publishing houses he supervises will print foreign novels.

For Lunacharsky's decision Russian life and letters may well be thankful. That any nation is so fertile within itself as to reject the art of all others is a strange conceit which could only result in stagnation and tepidness. China did it, and China paid and is still paying. Nations, like individuals, must leave their minds open to instruction.

THE CITY'S DUTY.

Col. Albert T. Perkins, formerly general manager of the St. Louis street car company, reports to the directors that in its peak in 1923 street car riding in St. Louis has declined about 10 per cent.

It will no doubt continue to decline, and it is a matter to which the city officials should give thoughtful concern. The street car is dying. A municipal transportation expert in Paris says it will in time become a museum piece. Meanwhile, automotive transportation is fast taking the street car's place. The decline of street car riding in St. Louis is more than balanced by the rise of bus and automobile riding.

Yet Mr. Kelker, the expert employed by a commission created to study the local transportation problem, recommends that the street car company spend over $20,000,000 for new tracks and equipment. As if to build more tracks and more equipment would be to revive street car riding and make the people like it better than they like bus and automobile riding!

The company should be told by the municipality that it cannot build any more tracks for this dying type of transportation and will not be given any more franchises for future rights in the streets when nobody knows how long street car riding will remain either profitable or practicable. The city should survey the present status of street car tracks. If it will do so, it will be found that, like the Vandeventer and Spaulding avenue lines, already abandoned by the company, there are other lines which are either now a burden to the company or shortly will be.

Only the junk lines can survive. The others will have to be replaced by busses. The busses will operate under permits. Under permits a rate as fair to the company as it is to the people of St. Louis can be agreed upon without going before a State Commission. It will not be affected by valuation decisions of the United States Supreme Court or those dreams of avarice which boost street car fares under the franchise system.

The company will not rationalize this situation because it still has hopes of extending its franchises, selling its securities in a distant market, and leaving gullible investors decently to bury their good old Dobbin, soon to be one with the buggy and the sleigh. The Transportation Survey Commission will not do it because it is wedded to Mr. Kelker's fantastic plans to put street car riding back on its feet by spending more than $20,000,000. This is a device to help refund the company's bond issue maturing in 1934.

Only the city can do it. If someone does not rise in the Board of Aldermen before very long and make such a proposal, the time will come when Dobbin will die in his tracks.

WE TOLD DR. NUNN.

We warned Dr. Nunn. We told him a couple of weeks ago, when February was impersonating the Queen of the May, not to be deceived by her perfumed blandishments. We know our February. Her treacherous stuff is an old story to us. Dr. Nunn, trustful stranger, may have felt that we were just a crusty cynic, without faith or hope or illusion. He knows now that February is everything we intimated. This wistful paradise that we have all been living in for a couple of weeks—well, where is it now? Late Saturday afternoon our Arcadia was swept into the discard by a blast from Antarctica, and for 48 hours we've been hugging radiators, drinking the hottest tea we could brew, shivering and chattering, and wondering whether this was to be the summerless year that the American people have been annually expecting for a century. Of course, this will pass. The blighting legacy which February passed on to March will presently fade away, and the hyacinth will smile, and the tulip beam and the magnolia recite a lively lyric.

AVIATION FACES THE FACTS.

One of the most favorable portents for the aviation industry, whose future in 1930 is a matter of some concern, is the sane attitude expressed by its leaders in a symposium prepared by the magazine Aviation. Here one finds little of the super-optimistic hot air of the industrialist who thinks to inflame his market by glossing over hard facts and painting rosy pictures.

Aviation took a hefty sock in the eye in 1929 and has the grace and the sense to admit it. It goes farther and analyzes just what laid it open to the blow and announces them openly. One reads that the successful flights in 1927 not only gave the business its biggest boost but deluded the manufacturers into thinking the "boom" condition was aviation's normal pace. Throughout 1928 factories pressed to fill the orders that poured in. The enthusiasts failed to note, however, that a great part of the orders were from within, that is, from allied businesses such as air transport companies and training schools. The public market was not intensively cultivated and the result was that when the transport and school fields were saturated, sales dropped off badly and the present overproduction resulted. Factories are now greatly shut down, about 2500 planes are made and unsold and soon to be outmoded, and the transport business is admittedly in need of a genius who will lead it out of the red ink. As 1929 was the year of the big aviation mergers, so 1930 is expected to be the year of unusual development in safety devices. Better financing will enable the companies to do this necessary work for the cultivation of the public market. Production, meanwhile, proceeds cautiously. The public loves to watch, aviation has found, but is slow to ride and slower to purchase. Aviation chooses wisely in wooing it with honesty.

CHANGING TRANSPORTATION METHODS.

In the following report of the Boston Elevated Railway, reprinted from the Boston Herald, is a capsule history of urban transportation for the past decade: We have put $30,000,000 into new plants since 1922, and in the same period our paying passengers have fallen away by some 30,000,000. On the other hand, we have invested about $2,500,000 in busses and thus have gained 30,000,000 passengers.

Automotive transportation is steadily gaining ever surface and elevated lines for the reason that it possesses undoubted points of superiority. That is true not only in the United States but in Europe, where surface cars are being progressively scrapped in favor of busses. To invest huge sums of money in surface transportation with the view of reviving it is like placing outs before a dead horse.

ANOTHER DRY HOLE.

Aviation Views Its Prospects for 1930

Advances in design predicted for this year by manufacturer; production handicapped by overselling in previous months, leaving 1000 planes unsold and equal number in hands that do not need them; reaction from boom will reduce purchases by business and transport lines; industry gets down to essentials as novelty wears off.

Sherman M. Fairchild, President Fairchild Corporation, in Aviation Magazine.

THERE is no doubt that great technical advance is going to be made in airplane design in 1930 and the years thereafter. The possibilities of really scientific engineering have never been fully used. Such scientific engineering requires expensive wind tunnels, model basins and large engineering staffs, which can be justified only by organizations with large production and capital to do the research and pay for it before returns on this money are obtained from the sale of the improved airplanes. This would indicate that airplane production would be concentrated in a few of the larger groups.

Aircraft production for 1930 is faced with the situation that there are from 1000 to 1500 planes which have never reached the ultimate consumer. Although they are not all listed in the manufacturers' inventories, they have been sold to allied organizations and have not yet reached a user. In addition to this, another thousand airplanes were purchased by organizations that have no real use for them and are now finding it out, and they will undoubtedly come back on the market. In addition to this, another thousand airplanes were purchased by organizations that have no real use for them and are now finding it out, and they will undoubtedly come back on the market. In addition to this, another thousand airplanes were purchased by organizations that have no real use for them and are now finding it out, and they will undoubtedly come back on the market.

There is a great deal of misconception about the use and possibilities of the airplane.

Puzzle.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

IN his interesting summary of the content provoked in Washington by the unimpaired Democratic landslide in a historic Republican congressional district in Massachusetts, J. Fred Essary has this to say in the Sun:

So far as most of the politicians are concerned, there is little doubt regarding the growing feeling of hostility which is held toward the White House. This has been apparent for some time, but lately it has been manifested to a remarkable degree.

And yet, though the hostility may be there, we can find no way in which Mr. Hoover has not lived up to the expectations of all save the most unintelligent of his 21,392,130 supporters. He promised a special session on farm relief and called it. He promised a commission on law enforcement, and it is at work. He promised tariff revision if possible, and the tariff is being revised. If he did so far as to talk about prosperity and happier homes, only fools took him seriously. The rest of the country knew that was as much political hokum as that prosperity and sometistic felicity are no more under the control of the president of the United States than is the course of the moon.

So far as we can see, President Hoover is giving exactly the sort of administration that might be expected of him. He truckled to the Anti-Saloon League and every American knew that implied degradation of the Federal courts. His weakness for commissions was well known before he was elected. His lack of conviction on essential political problems was equally well known. No one knew, before he was elected, whether he was for decentralization or for states' rights. No one knew whether he was wet or dry. No one knew whether he held proper rights about human rights or vice versa. He has nothing in his public record to indicate whether he should be classed as a liberal or as a conservative. There is exactly as much uncertainty in all these matters today as there was the day he was nominated.

In every respect Mr. Hoover has come up to the expectations of intelligent people and why there should be any more hostility against him today than there was a year ago, we do not understand.

WASHINGTON, March 3.

JUST before Alexander P. Moore, who died of the other day on the Pacific coast, set out for Spain to be this country's Ambassador at Madrid, friends tipped him off as to how one should act in the presence of royalty. Above all things, he was told, never attempt to direct conversation. Simply listen politely, and utter only those remarks that you are sure will be appropriate.

He had not been in Madrid long before he found himself one evening talking with Queen Victoria. Suddenly he realized that he had forgotten his friends' advice. He turned to her and said: "Your Majesty, I was told never to direct conversation when in your presence. And all of this time I have been the only talking."

His remark delighted the Queen. Her reply was: "Now at last, Mr. Ambassador, I know why our court conversations have been so stupid."

INCIDENTS like this made Moore a prime favorite not only with Spanish royalty, but with everyone in the Government with whom he had any dealings. His lack of pretense, his ready wit and his sagacity won for him a success in diplomacy almost without parallel.

One hot summer day he was called from his villa at San Sebastian to Madrid on business. He left in such haste that his valet neglected to put dress clothes in his bag. In Madrid he found it necessary to see King Alfonso. He set out for the palace in a business suit. The major domo was horrified that he should want to see the King so attired. Moore was told that an audience under the circumstances was impossible.

"You tell His Majesty that I am here," he said. "—how I am dressed, if you want to. I assume all responsibility."

King Alfonso received him. After their business was concluded, Moore alluded to the incident with the major domo and requested the King to put all blame on himself.

The King laughed heartily, and said: "You see, that's all he has to do. If he were not for incidents like this, he would have no job."

Our Growing Universe

MODERN COSMOLOGIES. By Hector Macpherson. (Oxford University Press.)

With an admirable economy of words that serves to clarify the subject matter and to intensify its interest, Dr. Macpherson's discussion of the British astronomer, singularly, brings forth the various conceptions of the universe that men have held, beginning with the most ancient times, when the earth was thought to be the center of the universe, and ending with modern scientific scheme, and ending with 1929.

"We have traveled far in four centuries," remarks the author in closing his discussion. "In 1529 the world was homely and comprehensible to a degree—a central earth for the benefit of whose inhabitants the whole of the universe had been constructed, with sun, moon and stars moving round it to minister to human needs. The universe of 1929, even if finite, extends to 400 times 140 million times six billion miles. Certainly if this is finite, it is a kind of finitude which boggles the mind into stupefaction. Whereupon, the discussion is ended with a quotation from Shelley.

It is interesting to note how many advanced writers on scientific theory in these days not only reiterate the great poets with respect, but quote from them. There is good reason for suspecting that the scientific and poetic modes of reaction to our world, far from being opposed, are in fact continuous, being only apparently separated by a band of shadow which is man's ignorance of his own consciousness. And does it not seem that those in the van of modern science have already penetrated that shadow where the nature of reality changes in keeping with a deepening and broadening of the consciousness that conceives and interprets it?

AN HOUR OF PHYSICS. By R. N. D. Andrade, D. Sc. Ph. D. (Lippincott.)

This handy little volume in the "One Hour Series" deals with the modern theories in physics, such as heat and energy, light, electricity, etc. in simple language, adapted to the understanding of the beginner. In chapter 5 the author, who is professor of physics in the University of London, explains the quantum theory, the most abstruse in modern science, so that one can understand something of its meaning without being a mathematician. The chapter is in striking contrast with the article on this theory in the new

Another Come Back.

ABOUT the time Winifred West-Over deserted Hollywood to become Mrs. William S. Hart, Lon Chaney made the Phantom of the Opera, a thrilling story which was one of the sensations of the day. Now the old film has been taken from the shelf, Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry, dragged out of retirement for some rattle in dialogue and the piece played over as a talkie. Chaney, however, has nothing to say, and when he is on the screen—those parts being cut in from the old film—the conversation lags. The revival is not a very exciting one. The drama groans with age and "The Phantom of the Opera" is plainly dated.

When the big show gets underway, El Brendel, Jim Corbett, Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrar, William Collier, and the rest of the old-time Patricola, George Jessell, J. FOR DIVIDED CONTROL OF CITY-COUNTY ROADS

Committee Would Put Only Major Highways Under Metropolitan Supervision.

Recommendation that the proposed metropolitan government for St. Louis and St. Louis County have supervision only of major thoroughfares is made in the report of the Highway Committee of the Council on Metropolitan Government, completed Saturday. The report says complete centralization of highway construction and maintenance is inadvisable at present. The major highways to be established, constructed and maintained would be designated by a metropolitan planning commission and would include about 270 miles of major streets in St. Louis and 1850 miles of county highways and streets in incorporated towns. All other streets and roads would be constructed by St. Louis, county municipalities and the county, as is done now.

How Bills Would Be Paid.
When the cost of construction of a major highway is more than the amount which could be assessed equitably by special tax bills against benefited districts, the general funds of the metropolitan government would be used to pay the excess. Such funds would be derived from general appropriation, bond issues by the metropolitan government and State aid.

Although St. Louis County would profit greatly by such an arrangement, it was explained by Prof. Thomas H. Reed, expert employed by the council, that other items of common interest would compensate the city, the plan being to arrange a balanced scheme which would not increase tax rates in either the city or county.

Statistics considered by the committee showed that in 1928, St. Louis paid $785,033 from its general revenue for maintenance of streets, and that in the same period St. Louis County and its municipalities spent $785,985.71 derived from a 25-cent county road tax and general municipal revenues.

As an example, it was shown that a tax of 10 cents on the present assessed value of city and county property would yield a surplus of $83,604.93 over the combined maintenance expense of $1,775,033.07.

The committee decided, however, Chairman George M. Berry said, that construction and maintenance of all except major highways could be supervised more efficiently by local governments.

CITY TO APPEAL STATE RULING ON LACLEDE HOLDING COMPANY

Will Argue Firm Authorized to Take Over Stocks Has No License in Missouri.

City Counselor Muench announced today the city would appeal to the courts from the State Public Service Commission's decision authorizing the Utilities Power & Light Corporation of Chicago, a holding company, to acquire the stocks of the Laclede Gas Light Co. and the Laclede Power & Light Co. of St. Louis, now held by the Laclede Gas & Electric Co.

As in the pending appeal in the street railways case, the city's objection will rest on the ground the holding company has no license to do business in Missouri and that the administrative officers of the Missouri companies are competent to do everything the holding company could do.

The suit will be filed in the Cole County Circuit Court and probably will be taken to the State Supreme Court.

RANDOLPH LAUGHLIN'S LAW OFFICES FOUND RANSACKED

Burglars ransacked the law offices of Randolph Laughlin and five associates at 1610 Paul Brown Building Saturday night or Sunday, removing money and negotiable paper, apparently in search of papers in Laughlin's possession.

Laughlin said he was convinced the burglars were searching for documents in a certain case, but that he had not yet found whether anything was missing.

Last Friday the suite occupied by William R. Schneider, former Circuit Judge Mix and others, in the Central National Bank Building, was ransacked in a similar manner.

and reactionary. Healthy collectivization must be based upon the active support of the bulk of the peasantry.

Stalin pointed out that the Government cannot mechanically transplant collective farm construction in developed and undeveloped regions alike, and warned that efforts of village Soviets at collectivization must be confined to those regions where conditions are favorable. It must not be forced on the peasants in such backward regions as Turkestan and the remote northern provinces, he said.

"In those regions peasants who don't wish to join collective farms not only have been threatened with armed force, but with attempts to deprive them of water and industrial goods," the article continued. "Such things are unworthy of our party. They constitute a distinct departure from the established policy of our party. They only lead to the strengthening of our enemies and threaten the destruction of the whole collective farm movement."

WANTS MISSOURI U. INQUIRY IN PUBLIC

Rabbi Asks Curators to Look Into "Unrest" Among the Faculty.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 3.—Rabbi Samuel S. Mayerberg has drafted a letter which he hopes to get several prominent citizens to sign asking that the public and the press be admitted to a hearing by the Board of Curators to determine whether the University of Missouri is "functioning as a free and unimpaired institution of higher learning."

President J. E. Goodrich of the Board of Curators in reply to a previous letter by Rabbi Mayerberg said the curators would be called to meet within the next two weeks.

Today's letter by Rabbi Mayerberg follows:

"We, the undersigned citizens and taxpayers of Missouri, feeling that the state of unrest manifest by members of the faculty of the University of Missouri, and crystallized by the resignation of Prof. J. Harvey Rogers, merits prompt and careful investigation, and urge you to make such investigation at the earliest possible moment.

"We further demand that the contemplated investigation by the Board of Curators shall be open to the public and that representatives of the press of the State be permitted to attend all sessions at which investigation is made. We are convinced that the results of the investigation cannot be beneficial to the university and its faculty unless the sessions are open to the public.

"We feel that members of the faculty will not feel free to express their convictions upon the state of unrest and uncertainty they are experiencing unless they know that they are protected by public opinion."

"It is obvious that we cannot expect any professor to place himself in a position of giving testimony to the Board of Curators when his position upon the faculty may be jeopardized by such testimony. We believe that now is the time to ascertain as to whether or not the present administration is the correct one for the university and as to whether or not the University of Missouri is functioning as a free and unimpaired institution of higher learning."

pressed institution of higher learning. This information can be secured only by public sessions, and we reiterate our demands that such public sessions be held."

9. THE MYSTERY OF THE TARGET RANGE—Strange Climax of the Cronkite-Rosenbluth Case.
10. THE MYSTERY OF ARNOLD ROTHSTEIN—Who Shot New York's Most Famous Gambler?

SIDNEY SUTHERLAND, famous reporter, has written for Liberty the story of ten true-life mysteries more involved, more baffling than any you have ever read in fiction. The police admit they are baffled. Can you find the solution? Even though in some cases the courts have come to an apparent solution, there is still a doubt in the minds of millions about the justice of those jury decisions. See if you can clear up the mystery.

Liberty will pay $10,000 in all for the best solutions to these ten mysteries—$1,000 for each case presented by Mr. Sutherland. You may attempt the solution of one mystery, or of all of them. You may enter this fascinating contest at any time.

Write with pencil, ink, or typewriter. You will be judged chiefly on plausibility—the conclusions reached from the facts available.

Put your detective instinct to work and win one of Liberty's cash prizes. A fascinating game and a generous reward for the best solutions.

Read these RULES Carefully!

Liberty will publish 10 distinct stories in this new real-life mystery series. $1000 will be paid for the best solution of each mystery, $10,000 for the series. For each of the ten murder mysteries, prizes will be divided as follows: First prize $500; second prize $250; third prize $100; fourth prize $50; fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth prizes $25.

Everyone except employees of Liberty and members of their families is eligible. Address solutions to the Liberty Mystery Contest, P. O. Box 480, Grand Central Station, New York City, N. Y. Solutions must be in the mail within four weeks after date of issue in which the story appears. Names of prize winners will be published as soon after they are selected as is possible. All pertinent details known are given in the articles, and correspondence asking for more information cannot be answered.

Mr. Sutherland will be the sole judge of the manuscripts submitted. Solutions will be judged on plausibility. Literary style does not matter. You may submit as many solutions on each mystery as you like. Each week's solutions will be judged as a unit. You may submit solutions on any one in the series, or on all ten.

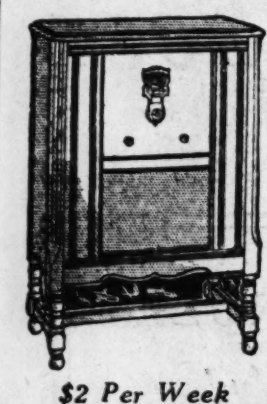

Third Victim of Air Crash Dies.
By the Associated Press.
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 3.—Phil (Jersey) Ringel, pioneer aviator and stunt flyer, died at a hospital here tonight, the third victim of a Marietta, Ga., air crash last Monday. Ringel was piloting a plane bearing George Tarbell Patten, president of Southern Flyers, Inc., and Dr. Lyle B. West, Patten's family physician, to the bedside of Patten's wife, who was injured in an automobile accident in Clearwater, Fla. Poor visibility, Ringel said, caused him to misjudge the field and he crashed after going into a nose dive when about 100 feet in the air. Mr. Patten was instantly killed. Dr. West died in an Atlanta hospital.

750 of 1000 Business Failures Called Unnecessary
In a recent survey of retail business failures which has been analyzed since November, fully 75 per cent could have been prevented by the application of the simplest standards of personal and business conduct. The chief cause reported by the bankruptcy clinic was lack of adequate inventory and bookkeeping systems, and failure to take account of credit losses. A Rubicam training prevents many losses.

How a Family Doctor made Millions of Friends

FIFTEEN years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became one of the best-known members of his profession. A single prescription made him famous. And for forty years it has continued to make friends.

As fast as people could tell others about the marvelous way this prescription corrects constipation and relieves other troubles caused by the digestive tract, demand for it spread until Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it filled in quantities; bottled and distributed through drug stores.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people would never think of using anything else when they're headachy, bilious, feverish, or weak; when breath is unpleasant, tongue is coated or they are suffering from lack of appetite, etc.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as you buy it from your drug store is made in accordance with the original formula from only herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant tasting; its action is thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe to produce elimination.

KIRKWOOD CONTRACTOR DENIES HOLDUP CHARGE

Henry L. Venneman, in Jail, Accused of Seven Robberies and Criminal Attacks.

Henry L. Venneman, 61-year-old painting contractor of Kirkwood, held in jail at Clayton under warrants charging highway robbery and criminal assault, denied today that he was responsible for any of the seven reported robberies in and near Kirkwood in which men were robbed and their young women companions criminally assaulted.

"It is the most terrible thing that ever happened to me," he said, weeping. "I would rather be guilty of murder than a thing like this."

Venneman declared he was a victim of mistaken identity on the part of two men and a young woman who have identified him. He related that his grandfather was one of the original settlers in the Kirkwood vicinity, and that he had lived there all his life.

Venneman, a widower, lives with his seven children, ranging in age from 14 to 28 years, at 427 Seckamp avenue. He has been active in politics, a leader in the Progressive party which is sponsoring the commission form of government to be voted on at a special election tomorrow. He has many friends including County Judge Bopp, who said he considered the charges "ridiculous."

The warrants were issued on the complaint of Arthur Lens of Kirkwood and a young woman, who were held up on Geyer road north of Manchester road last Monday night.

"I went into the grocery where this boy works last Wednesday and he thought he recognized me," Venneman said. "Friday I was at a commission meeting at St. Peter's Church when he came in with the girl and they identified me. That was the first I knew about it."

Friends of Venneman have retained counsel and are endeavoring to obtain a $20,000 bond pending a preliminary hearing March 12 before Justice of the Peace Peters at Kirkwood.

PUBLIC WELFARE BUREAU REORGANIZATION PROPOSED
Increase of $124,000 a Year Would Be Involved; Put Up to Estimate Board.

A bill proposing reorganization of the Department of Public Welfare with a payroll increase of $124,000 annually, was discussed today at a hearing before the Aldermanic Committee on Public Welfare. Without taking a vote the committee referred the measure to the Board of Estimate.

Associate City Comptroller Cunningham indicated that the bill would meet with opposition in the Board of Estimate, as the city's finances would not permit increases in personnel authorized in the bill.

Director of Public Welfare Salisbury, Hospital Commissioner Lohr and Health Commissioner Starkloff took turns explaining the proposed reorganization. It would affect the hospital, health and park divisions. Of the $124,000, $68,000 would be spent at the various city institutions, including $24,440 at City Hospital.

Dr. Lohr declared a medical director was needed at City Hospital. An increase in the number of resident physicians from five to eight also was asked.

The City Sanitarium, Dr. Lohr continued, has seven resident doctors to care for 300 patients, and should have 15. He recommended also a full-time dental clinic and improvements in the barber shop and beauty parlor at the Sanitarium.

MAN, CHILD, KILLED, 12 HURT IN $3,000,000 WHARF FIRE

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, La., March 2.—A river front fire of undetermined origin, in which two lives were lost and 12 persons were injured, damaged a wharf, two warehouses and a steamship early today. Leonard Smith, warehouse supervisor, estimated the loss at the Charbonnet docks at $3,000,000.

The charred body of Joseph Ryan, 46 years old, mesan, of New Orleans, was found aboard the steamship Scania when she was towed into midstream after the flames had severed moorings.

Ralph Kreher, 3-year-old son of Mrs. Charles Kreher, who was a guest of the ship personnel at a dinner when the fire broke out, died today. Mrs. Kreher was seriously hurt.

The injured were members of the crew or visitors aboard the ship from New Orleans. Mrs. Elizabeth Battam, 57, seriously burned, was taken from the craft by Seaman Charles Lunn, who jumped overboard and swam to safety with her.

Approximately 20,000 bales of cotton were destroyed and 100,000 others damaged. The cotton was to be shipped this week to Italy. Damage to the ship was estimated at $75,000.

RETIRED SCHOOL TEACHER DIES

George Hoerber, 65 years old, who recently completed 35 years of teaching in the St. Trinity Lutheran Church School, died of heart trouble yesterday at his home, 6527 Michigan avenue. He gave up his work two months ago because of ill health. Born in New York City, he first taught in Belleville, and then in the Bethlehem Lutheran School in North St. Louis before joining the staff at St. Trinity. He was treasurer of the western district of the Missouri synod and a member of the board of Concordia Publishing House. His widow, Mrs. Hulda Hoerber, and three sons survive.

D. H. LAWRENCE DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

British Novelist's Treatment of Sex Themes Caused Suppression of Several Works.

By the Associated Press.
NICE, France, March 3.—D. H. Lawrence, British novelist, died here today after a long illness.

David Herbert Lawrence, born at Eastwood, Nottinghamshire, on Sept. 11, 1885, was considered one of the most powerful and original of the younger English novelists. His first books, "The White Peacock" (1911), "The Trespasser" (1912), and "Sons and Lovers" (1913), brought quick recognition. A police prosecution followed publication of "The Rainbow" (1915), and frequent clashes with the authorities have resulted from subsequent works.

"Lawrence," says the new Encyclopedia Britannica, "is undoubtedly one of the most powerful of the novelists who came into prominence just before the World War. He was increasingly obsessed by the problems of sex, especially in his later works the scene of which was laid in Mexico. His powerful analysis of the sex motive was possibly the most characteristic feature of his work; but he had a great gift in the interpretation of nature scenery, and the many fine descriptive passages in his books show spiritual insight as well as artistic power of expression."

Until 1920, Lawrence's work consisted of novels and poems. His study of psychoanalytical doctrine and extensive travel influenced his subsequent work which included such novels as "Women in Love," "Aaron's Rod," "Kangaroo," and "The Plumed Serpent."

One of Lawrence's latest works, "Lady Chatterley's Lover," was published privately in Italy in 1928. In April, 1929, several copies, mailed to members of the Trans colony of artists and writers Postoffice as obscene.

The following August, London dispatches related that four paintings by Lawrence, on exhibition there, had been barred by a police court ruling as obscene. At the time, Lawrence, living in Germany, was classed as an Englishman living permanently abroad and therefore was not made a party to the prosecution.

Miscellaneous writings of Lawrence included several volumes of literary comment and travel essays, as well as "Psychoanalysis and the Unconscious," and "Fantasia of the Unconscious." He wrote also a historical study, "Movements in European History," under the name Lawrence H. Davison.

He married Frieda von Richthofen in 1914. They had no children. The writer died at the home of a friend in Venice, a suburb in the Nice area. His wife was with him. His funeral will be held in Venice tomorrow.

IMPROMPTU MEALS EASILY PREPARED

Hurriedly Arranged and Delicious Food Adds to a Housewife's Reputation.

Impromptu meals have a certain charm that the wise housewife appreciates and makes the most of. They are however best when they are not quite so impromptu as they seem—best that is from the hostess' viewpoint, for certainly many a panic moment can be avoided by the consciousness that a well stocked pantry shelf stands ready to supply the where-withall for any one of the many dishes that may suggest itself to a hungry group yearning for "one of those famous meals every body has a share in."

If a handy grocery store shop lurks nearby, so much the better, but even so it is safest to keep on hand the makings for a rarebit or two, eggs and bacon, bread for toasted sandwiches and something for fillings.

There are some things that lend themselves more readily than others to such times, and a few seasonings should always be kept in readiness to add that little touch of distinction that makes a dish "a thing apart."

A bottle of Worcestershire sauce, a tube or jar of anchovy paste, one of prepared mustard, a good assortment of sweet and sour pickles, jellies in several flavors, paprika, cayenne, a bulb of garlic, curry powder, a jar of chutney—all these will come in handy when serving impromptu meals.

Eggs are perhaps one of the most popular ingredients for this type of entertaining, and when they are scrambled to creamy consistency and served on thin pieces of toast spread with anchovy paste, they are sure to be enthusiastically received. Serve watercress salad and French dressing with them if possible, plenty of fragrant hot coffee and if anything more is desired, crackers and cheese.

Rarebits of any variety, providing they are well made, are nearly as popular as scrambled eggs. Sardine or tomato rarebits are less commonly met with, and even these have a more delightful touch of novelty if served with a spicy chutney. This, by the way, in case the home cook is not familiar with it, is a hot East Indian pickle that can be bought in bottles in any good grocery. It is usually served with curry, but it is excellent with any cheese rarebit, or with toasted cheese sandwiches. An excellent rarebit is made from the following recipe:

Cut one-half pound cheese in small pieces. Melt three tablespoons butter in a small saucepan and stir in four tablespoons flour. When well blended stir in one and three-fourths cups of milk. Continue stirring over a slow fire until thickened, then add the cheese, one-fourth cup tomato catsup, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth teaspoon paprika and salt to season. Stir until the cheese melts, then serve at once on toast or toasted crackers.

Canned lobster is most convenient to use for this. Use a pound can for six servings. Chop the lobster meat into fine pieces and mix with one and one-half cups hot thick white sauce. Stir in carefully enough salt to season, a scant one-eighth teaspoon cayenne pepper, two teaspoons prepared mustard and one tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar. Spread thick layers of this on small pieces of toasted or fried bread and serve at once with plenty of crisp celery, olives and sweet pickles.

MONEY BEING FEATURED IN VARIOUS DIETARIES

This Sweet Is Considered One of the Very Easily Digested Foods.

Most people like the flavor of "honey" and as it is a wholesome food, it should be more often used. Honey contains a very small amount of cane sugar and a large percentage of what we call "invert sugars" in the form of dextrose and levulose. These latter are forms of sugar that are very easily assimilated.

Therefore, honey may be considered as one of the very readily digested foods, and as a sweet is good for children and for those of weak digestion.

Honey should be kept in a warm, dry place, as it absorbs moisture rather readily. Pure strained honey will often sugar if the temperature changes are very marked, good for children and for those of weak digestion.

While the appearance and the flavor may be slightly changed, the honey can be liquefied, again by placing it in a pan of warm water until the sugar crystals have melted. Be careful not to let the water boil; it is best kept a little more than lukewarm.

GOOD COOK KNOWS THE OVEN

Different Types of Stoves Require Different Regulating.

One of the requirements of a good cook is knowledge of her oven. It is through experience only that a person becomes adept in baking in that oven. It is difficult to give any set rules for testing an oven for baking, unless the ovens are of the same type and similarly lived.

Heat oven at least 15 minutes before testing it. Then use your own method of trying it for the right heat before putting in the food to be baked.

APPLE-CHESTNUT SALAD IS A SEASONAL DISH

Nut and Fruit Combinations Make Nutritious Salads for Lunch.

A salad suitable for the season is made of chestnuts, apples and celery.

Cut the apples into thin slices. Shell and boil the chestnuts 15 minutes, or until soft.

Drain, and when cool, cut nuts and celery in slices.

Moisten with a part of the dressing and put into a salad bowl with the remainder of the dressing on top.

Garnish with celery tips.

Natural 100% Bran Is Best, Say Doctors

Over 90% of Physicians' Group Favor This Bran as Laxative

Not long ago the following question was asked of ten thousand doctors:

"Do you believe that raw natural 100% bran is the best form of bran for the relief of constipation?"

93% of the answers were "Yes." Nothing could be more valuable than such advice as this to those who are constantly troubled by atonic constipation, a wide-spread disease—bowel irregularity resulting from intestinal sluggishness.

These doctors say "natural 100% bran." Your grocer has it—Pillsbury's Bran, natural 100% bran, nothing added, nothing taken away.

Pillsbury's Bran is roughage in a most valuable form—it goes to the root of the trouble, and relieves it naturally.

Modern soft diet causes irregular elimination—or elimination that is regular but not complete. Waste material remains in the system—causing headaches, lassitude, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, lowered vitality and increased susceptibility to more serious disease.

Eat Pillsbury's Bran in some way every day. You can use it to prepare many delicious foods—muffins, toast, apple cake, macaroons, doughnuts, etc.—the recipes are on the Pillsbury package. You can sprinkle it over salads, or mix it with cereals. You can eat it as it comes from the package, with cream and sugar. No matter how you eat Pillsbury's Bran, you may be sure you're getting the right kind—natural 100% bran, overwhelmingly preferred by doctors. Your grocer has it—start tomorrow.

This is the first of a series of paragraphs by widely known faculty professors giving their individual opinions of the chain store system.

Dr. Paul H. Nystrom, Professor of Marketing, Columbia University:

"In my opinion the chain store system is a benefit to the American public, and it is improbable it will become a dangerous monopoly. That represents my opinion as to the long range effects of chains. There are many immediate problems requiring solution, but I am hopeful that more or less satisfactory solutions will be found. Even independent retailers who are hard hit will probably be benefited in the long view."

Better than any other of people, these men know the facts upon which the chain store system is based.

COMPANY DESSERTS FOR SMALL FOLKS

Combinations Used Include Foods That Are Readily and Easily Digested.

Desserts for young children and invalids should be carefully planned and selected. Only those combinations should be used that are readily and easily digested. This means that the combinations should be simple and generally those made from milk, eggs, fruit and gelatine.

Raspberry Delight.
Drain a can of raspberries, add a bit of the grated rind of lemon juice and sweeten with powdered sugar, if desired. Chill. Whip one cup cream until stiff, fold in one small box marshmallows chopped fine. Just before serving, fold in the raspberries. Serve in sherbet cups lined with sponge cake, lady fingers, or thin vanilla wafers.

Pineapple Gelatine.
Pineapple gelatine served from individual molds is an attractive and tasty dessert. Decorated with bits or slices of pineapple and whipped cream and having little cookies as an accompaniment this dessert becomes quite complete.

Ambrosia.
Peel oranges, remove all fibrous skin and break into small portions. Blend with dates and sugar, chill, and garnish with cherries.

Fear Meringues.
Drain six pear halves and dip in one-third cup of orange juice. Beat two egg whites until stiff, beat in four tablespoons of granulated sugar and continue beating until the mixture will hold its shape. Arrange pears on a flat baking dish, cut side up; fill centers with chopped candied orange peel and cover with a rounding spoonful of the meringue. Brown lightly in a moderate oven. Serve cold with pear syrup as a sauce.

Tapoca Pudding.
Soak four tablespoons tapoca in a little water; boil one quart milk and pour over it while hot; when cool add one-half cup sugar, one egg and yolk of two eggs (well beaten), add flavoring, bake; when baked beat the two whites with two tablespoons sugar and spread on top and brown.

Apricot Dainty.
Rub stewed evaporated apricots through a coarse sieve, add sugar and pineapple flavoring, mix well, fold in whipped cream carefully. Line sherbet glasses with split lady fingers or narrow strips of sponge cake; fill with the mixture and garnish with maraschino cherries or chopped nuts. Chill before serving.

If desired apricot dainty may be prepared in a large mold and served at the table by the hostess.

Daisy Surprises.
Braid four tablespoons of cornstarch in a little cold milk. Heat one quart of milk, one tablespoon of butter and three tablespoons of sugar in a double boiler and add the braided cornstarch. Cook for 20 minutes. Add one cup of chopped dates. Remove from the heat and add one teaspoon of almond and one-half teaspoon of vanilla extract. Serve with whipped cream with a seeded date on top.

HOW TO MIX BUTTER CAKE
Success in Making Cake, Depends Largely on Mixing.

The general method of mixing butter cakes is as follows: Mix shortening until soft and combine with sugar.

The recipe sometimes reads "Cream sugar and butter together." Add egg yolks beaten until thick and lemon colored, and mix thoroughly.

Sift flour once before measuring, and then, at least, twice together with the baking powder and salt.

Add the flour mixture and milk alternately to the first mixture; then add flavoring and lastly fold in the whites of eggs beaten until stiff.

Great Scott!
We've heard a lot about Phil Scott.
For whom we are a booster. He pulled up lame, a foul to claim.
Like any old game rooster.
Upon the mat he stretched out flat
And wiggled like a worm; then writhed in pain which made it plain
That he was hors de combat.
On limping leg the good old egg
Then from the scene departed. A fox move which doesn't prove That Phil was chicken-hearted.

Why Not?

See where the United States Senate has put oil on the fire. Why not put a little on the legislative machinery and speed her up a bit.
The Redbirds and Robins are winging their way South. Indicating six more weeks of winter.
Bill Killefer is elated over the manner in which the Browns are working out at West Palm Beach. Due notice will be given when reservations will be accepted for the world series.
It's little early for predictions, but the Browns and Cardinals ought to be wearing their knickerbockers out on the gates of Fenwayville some time this fall.
"Boy Unconscious 524 Hours." He has the making of a good copy boy.

The Great Surges passed through San Antonio, where the White Sox are training the other day without leaving his card. At time of going to press Manager Donie Bush was reported to be leaving up under the shock, as well as could be expected.

In the meantime Donie is casting an anchor to windward in the person of Bud Clancy so that the outlook would be completely hopeless in case the Great and Only decides to desert his place at the pumps and let the old ship sink.

Speaking of pumps, see where a man has invented a flat-heeled shoe primarily for sporting men. Which ought to work out if a guy keeps on his toes and doesn't get caught flat-footed.

LUTHERAN BASKET TOURNAMENT CONTINUES

One of two teams is certain of being eliminated tonight in the Concordia Lutheran basketball tournament at Bethany Hall. The Zion Greens and the Redeemers have each lost one game, and under the double elimination system, if they lost another game they will be out of the running. One of the two will be sure to lose for they oppose each other in a game starting at 7:30 o'clock. Mount Calvary will meet St. Paul at 8:30 and at 9:30 Ebenezer will go against St. Lucas.

WARD IS VICTOR OVER DE MARIN MARATHON RACE

By the Associated Press
HOUSTON, Tex., March 3.—Fred Ward Jr. of Dover, N. J., today was titleholder of the first annual National A. A. U. 20-mile marathon, which he ran here yesterday for the Millrose A. C. of New York, setting a time of 2 hours, 32 seconds.

Ward was given a great battle by the veteran Clarence Demar of the Millrose A. A. of Boston, but the younger man had the reserve strength to spurt up in the closing yards of the run to breast the line and beat Demar by a margin of 42-year-old star of many marathons.

An Indian, August Barboza of Dallas, came in third, 20 minutes behind Ward, and five minutes behind Demar. William Neville of Houston trotted over the finish line for fourth place. James Savage of New Orleans was a distant fifth, finishing one hour and 16 minutes behind the winner.

Three others dropped out. It was a real struggle between Demar and Ward, with never more than 10 yards separating the two. Both seemed strong at the finish, although Ward was attacked by stomach cramps when five miles from the finish.

PAIR WILL HEADLINE CARD AT ARENA ST. PATRICK'S DAY; MALLOY AFTER OTHER MATCHES

By W. J. McGoom.
Primo Carnera, giant Italian boxer, is to meet Chuck Wiggins of Indianapolis at the Arena on March 17, according to an announcement by Malloy over the long-distance telephone from Chicago today to Malloy's publicity agent here. Malloy stated the tickets would be put on sale Thursday.

In Wiggins, Carnera will be meeting the toughest opponent he has faced, since he landed in America. Although never considered an outstanding title threat, Wiggins has always caused plenty of trouble for his opponents and knows all the tricks of the trade.

Malloy stated while he was in St. Louis, yesterday, that he would try to have a clause inserted in Wiggins' contract which would cause "Chuck" to lose his purse, in the event of an intentional foul. Wiggins has fought twice recently winning both of his battles and is said to be in fine physical condition following a stay in an Indianapolis jail where he landed because of an altercation with police.

Fought Seven Bouts in U. S.
Carnera has fought seven times since coming to the United States and has won all his bouts in short order. None of his opponents has stayed two full rounds with him, but there has been a constant effort to fight him, which is no consideration of a class to give him a real battle.

That should not be the case with Wiggins, for he is considered a good trial horse and should make Carnera show some of the stuff which he is said to possess.

Malloy also is working on a bout to the same card in which he plans to have Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia meet Pierre Charles, Belgian heavyweight. Malloy stated, however, that his main concern was with the Carnera-Wiggins match and if he could arrange that he wouldn't worry much whether he closed the other match or not.

Malloy plans to put on a strong supporting card for the Carnera-Wiggins match. In one bout he plans to use Chuck Heffner, Denver welterweight, who put up such a good exhibition against Fatsy Pincus at the Arena on Feb. 11. Malloy is considering a match between Heffner and Jackie Horner of St. Louis.

The ticket prices this time are likely to range from $1.10 to $3.50, because Malloy found out through his experience here last month that $1.10 general admission was in demand.

Sullivan to Cancel His Date
Tommy Sullivan announced today that as soon as he receives official notification that Malloy has arranged for a boxing card on March 17 he will cancel his date for a show on March 14. That will leave three boxing shows of importance scheduled here this month.

Jack Tippet is promoting a show with Bud Taylor and Lou Terry in the headline bout on March 10 while Benny Bass and Eddie Shea meet in a junior lightweight title fight on March 25, under the direction of Tom Packa. In between will come the Carnera-Wiggins go on March 17.

Malloy has spent some time since his first promotion effort here, which was held Feb. 11, when Carnera knocked out Buster Martin, figuring just how he came out.

Donie Bush Expects Jolley, Young Outfielder, to Put Batting Punch in White Sox

By Donie Bush.
Manager Chicago White Sox.

I'm making any forecasts or predictions relative to the Chicago White Sox for 1930 I must first go on record as saying that I know but little about the club from observation, most of my knowledge being merely hearsay.

After retiring from the management of the Pittsburgh club, late in the fall of 1929, I fled myself to Chicago to have a look at the White Sox, the club which I am to manage the coming season.

On what I saw of the club I am pretty well satisfied with the pitching which is a most important asset. It was early apparent to me that the club was weak on the offensive and my first thought on taking over the managerial reins was to make an effort to correct this fault. In securing Outfielder Jolley I think we have made a start in the right direction.

For several years as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates I had an opportunity of watching Jolley of San Francisco in action, as we played a number of exhibition games with that club every spring. I know the Chicago club had been using some dicing for Jolley and the first move I made was to urge the immediate purchase of this player.

Better Than Averill.
To my way of thinking, there will be no better hitter on the Chicago club than Jolley. I note that both Averill of Cleveland and Johnson of Detroit, who played on the same outfield with Jolley were rated as stars in the American League last season, prize rookies. To give you some idea of what I think of Jolley, I need only say that I believe he is a better hitter than either of these two players. Jolley is going to make a big difference with the Chicago club the coming season. Pitchers' battles previously lost for the want of a timely base hit, are going to be turned into victories through the medium of Jolley's big stick.

On what I saw of Watwood and Reynolds, they impressed me as having all the capabilities of regulars, with a chance to be stars overnight. I look for both these youngsters to break through with a vengeance the coming season. They are sure to be much improved players and they did mighty well last year.

I need not comment on the pitching ability of Ted Lyons and Tommy Thomas; they are outstanding. Red Faber, despite his 42 years, if given the proper rest, is one of the toughest pitchers in the American League to beat. I

TOMMY'S COLUMN

Making It Easy.
THOSE harbingers of spring, the baseball "experts," are making it easy for our two brand-new baseball leaders, William Killefer and Gabby Street.

Around the circuits, men who are being paid to guess the baseball races correctly have damned both St. Louis clubs with faint praise—or none.

The summary on the "Cardinal outfit" is that it is an erratic club with a pitching staff that is petering out and stars that are ageing. The low-down on the Browns, we are told, is that the team is equipped with a fair pitching staff and has a great defensive infield, but it is short of catchers and has a weak hitting outfield and infield. The old wallop begins and ends with Helge Manush, as Schulte is supposed to be always looking out the window when Opportunity coughs.

We Need a Miracle.
CONSIDERING these lugubrious versions of our possibilities, not much will be expected of either Killefer or Street—which is the situation every manager loves. Managers prefer no pre-season boasts for their clubs. Then, if the predictions come through nobody is blamed. The expected happened. But, on the other hand, if the team wins, then the new manager becomes a Miracle Man, pronto!

Miracle men happen along at times when least expected; as George Stallings proved in 1914 at Boston and Pat Moran twice demonstrated, in 1915 at Philadelphia and at Cincinnati in 1919.

But the miracle men of the St. Louis clubs seem to need a couple of 350 clouters for the Browns, and a pair of Dizzy Vances for the Cardinals.

Safety in Numbers?
THE Yankees will have nine pitchers at training camp. If there's safety in numbers the pitching of the Yanks will pull a comeback. However, Connie Mack of the Athletics is content with a few himself and the best part of it is they are proved winners.

The Yanks may have the numbers but the Macks will have their number.

The Athletics have a Miracle Man in charge of their team, which, however, is good enough to struggle along without one. If the club doesn't finish first it will be just too bad—the $10,000 prize for the most valuable man to the city of Philadelphia will find a new home.

The Barber May Trim 'Em.
PHILADELPHIANS say the new Miracle Man may be Burt Shotton, who managed the O'Douls and Kleins. If Burt can get his pitching staff to a point where it will yield an average of only six earned runs per game, Klein, O'Doul and company will do the rest by driving in an average of six or more. Burt was a barber once—much means that he ought to be able to give his rivals a good trimming.

The best majority of experts predict for Burt the Barber is a close shave for first division—with Dan Howley and his Reds driving hard.

The Reds May Surprise.
HERE again we have a former St. Louis pilot being remembered in the pre-season apple sauce as being disappointed. Around the circuit they look for Howley to have his club about four notches higher than it was last season and that would place it in the upper set.

Howley is supposed to have a way with pitchers and with gentlemen of steno-boasting proclivities. It is anticipated, therefore, that some of the Reds' hurriers who flunked out last season, will be pitching on all eight, while some new 350 slugging temperaments acquired from the American League.

Jim told Frasier of Dallas is a great prospect, who has a chance to win for Chicago from the start. If he can do this, I won't have much to worry about as to pitching.

"TH Handle Shires."
A lot of people are passing out sympathy for me relative to the task I have ahead in trying to make Shires behave. I share none of their feelings. I have met Shires and he strikes me as an intelligent young man. He looked good on the field in the few games I saw his play last summer. I think I know how to handle Shires and do not anticipate any such troubles as beset him and the club last year. I figure to get a lot of high-class play out of Shires.

One thing I am positive of, the Sox will be in there fighting for every ball game, regardless of where we finish and by the way, it will be higher than last year. (Copyright, 1929.)

BROWNS' LEADER SAYS CALDWELL AND HOLSHAUSER WILL GRADUATE

By James M. Gould.
Of the Post-Dispatch sport staff.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 3.—Extremely cold weather today marked the beginning of the Browns' second week in camp. The players are drifting, in from various sections of the country. Today saw the arrival of Warren (Rip) Collins, the big right-handed pitcher and Sammy Hais, obtained from the Athletics in exchange for Wattle Schanz.

The general impression of the 1930 Browns is that they have added no new strength and that, old wallop begins and ends with Helge Manush, as Schulte is supposed to be always looking out the window when Opportunity coughs.

The new manager, Burt Shotton, is not one of those who thinks no new strength has been added. Killefer broadcasts to this effect: "They may not have added any strength. Have you taken a look at two of these young pitchers? Did you watch Holshauser and Caldwell? Minor leaguers, but they've shown enough in a few days to make me pretty sure that they've graduated out of the minors."

The move-driving Killefer used up a perfectly good hour yesterday by making the more or less earnest athletes go through a workout. It was "of a Sunday" and all that, but they went through their paces just the same. Nobody was hurt and Bill wants these two next days over so he can have his whole squad out.

STRONG AND JOYCE TO PLAY FOR K. C. A. C. IF BEARS BEAT BILLIKENS
If Washington University's basketball team defeats the St. Louis University five in the second game of their city title series this week, Hann Strong, scoring ace of the Billikens, and Jack Joyce, defensive star, will go to Kansas City next week to play in the National Amateur Athletic Union basketball championships as a member of the Kansas City Athletic Club five.

If the Billikens beat Washington, then the St. Louis players will be forced to miss the national event, because they will be needed here to play in the "rubber" or deciding contest with the Bears.

Both Billikens today admitted they had been invited to compete for the K. C. A. C. event, but that they had obtained the university's permission to play, subject to the proviso mentioned above.

The K. C. A. C. team will include members of the University of Missouri team, which closes its season Wednesday night in a game with Kansas. The Tiger players mentioned are Welsh, Baker and Huhn.

can League will be hitting all fences, this year.

The Reds really are an interesting prospect—the more so because the Browns' set pass three men whom the Reds picked up from the American League discard for a paltry $7500 each. And two of them had stuff that the Browns lack.

A Hellmann and a Menzel, hitting at their best, would just about put Howley over big.

Carnera's Legs.
AFTER seeing Carnera tripping around the ring on his toes in practice workouts, for periods as long as 20 or 30 minutes, one is inclined to think the scare about the Man Mountain's varicose veins is just another laugh. The last thing one thinks of as being weak after watching Felton do his stuff is weak underpinning.

But the medical men are agreed that Carnera's condition is such that he should not do road work or fatiguing training, because of his varicose condition.

"The free circulation of blood is impaired in varicose condition," a doctor explains, "and consequently the elimination of fatigue poisons is interfered with. A man in Carnera's condition is likely to suffer a complete breakdown of his legs."

There is even a possibility of death resulting should a clot of congealed blood be carried in the blood stream to the brain, according to an opinion expressed by a writer in Encyclopedia Britannica.

At this time, however, Carnera appears anything but a subject of concern, for he is cheerful, active and in the prime of his power. That he should be facing a collapse in a year or two seems incredible. But there is no doubt about his varicose condition. His showing here against Wiggins March 17 will be watched with interest.

KOLSTERS WIN FROM SCHENBERG ELEVEN IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Scoring twice in the first half, when they had the assistance of a strong wind, the Kolster team defeated the Schenberg in the first match of their three-game series for the Municipal Soccer League championship at Fairground Park yesterday afternoon. Gene Thumm scored on penalty kick in the second half for the only Schenberg tally.

Choice of goals was an important factor with the wind so strong that it held the ball in the east half of the field and when the Kolsters won the toss of the coin and chose to kick with the gale it was conceded they had a big advantage.

Inside Right Metz, playing a greatly improved game over his performance of a week ago, popped through the first goal for the Kolsters and Hooky O'Connell added another. During this period the Schenbergers were rarely on the attack.

Fox to Wrestle Here.

Charley Fox of Cleveland, who has appeared in two affairs billed as wrestling matches, at the Coliseum, has been obtained to appear in a preliminary match on the card next Friday night at the Coliseum, in which Fred Grobmeier and George Hagen will meet in the main event. Roy Steele is being sought by Matchmaker Tom Packa as Fox's opponent.

Wherever you go Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency...join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

"It serves him right," we say when the filthy spitter is caught in the act. For spitting is an outrage against public decency. And yet, thousands continue to smoke cigars rolled by dirty, yellowed fingers that tip the ends in spit! For more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit! Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof...immaculate...foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

GREYOLA, 3-YEAR-OLD FILLY, WINS $29,000 AGUA CALIENTE DERBY

BECOMES STRONG CANDIDATE FOR $140,000 STAKE TO GO MARCH 23

By the Associated Press. Lower California, Mexico, March 2.—Greyola, a 3-year-old, today took her place among the turf's great fillies and her owner, Raoul Walsh, Hollywood movie director, became a new entrant in the racing game with $29,000 in his pocket, the money won by the daughter of Grey Lag yesterday in the Agua Caliente Derby.

In one of the best exhibitions of running seen here this winter, Greyola galloped the mile and one-eighth to lead a field of 13 starters by a scant length. The race was the second largest money event of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club. Walsh had purchased the filly Saturday for a reported price of $15,000. Her time was 1 minute 51 4-5 seconds. She is not entered in the Kentucky Derby.

Leaving the post in third place, Greyola took the lead at the first turn and was never headed, although Longus, William Hoffman's entry from the Ventura (Cal.) Stables, made a fight of it at the finish. Third place went to Tonto Rock, from the ranch of Fred Almy, Green Valley, Arizona.

Greyola responded nicely to the riding of Jockey Frankie Catron, to increase her lead on the back stretch to two lengths over Good and Hot, belonging to John McKenn, Ontario, Cal., the horse which left the chute two strides in front of the field. Tonto Rock and Longus came up fast on the final drive, closing in on the winner. After Good and Hot faltered and dropped behind, to finish a bad sixth.

The triumph placed the dashing 3-year-old in the class of important contenders for the feature race of the season, the Agua Caliente Handicap, which holds the world's richest stake, $140,000. This classic is booked for March 23.

SIX DAY BIKE RACE STARTS AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 2.—Fifty-eight laps were stolen during the first hour of riding of the 48th international six-day bike race which got under way at Madison Square Garden last night.

From the time Fred Stone fired the starting gun, the 15 teams started jamming. Ten minutes later it was announced five laps had been captured.

Horse Disqualified, French Racing Fans Again Burn Booths

By the Associated Press. MARSEILLE, France, March 2.

One man was killed and many were arrested when the betters, angry over disqualification of the horse which won the sixth race, set fire to the pari-mutuel booths and destroyed and sacked the paddock, grand stands and bars. Firemen and police resources were called out, but could not save the principal buildings and stables.

The winning horse was Sal-petra, who was disqualified for interference.

RENTROP NAMED LONDOS-PESEK BOUT REFEREE

By the Associated Press. MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 2.

The Wrestling Committee of the National Boxing Association, in session here today, appointed Charles Rentrop of Memphis, former heavyweight wrestler, as referee for the approaching heavyweight title match at Columbus, O., April 2, between Jimmy Londos of Greece and John Pesek of Ravenna, Neb. The old date that had been selected was March 12.

Paul Prehn, Champaign, Ill., and R. E. Weinacker, Cincinnati, were elected as judges for the contest.

ED MEYER, BEARS CENTER, AGAIN LEADS SCORING IN CONFERENCE

By the Associated Press.

To Ed Meyer, Washington University center, went most of the glory that came out of the Missouri Valley Conference basketball race which closed last week.

The rangy pivot man repeated his performance of last year in leading the circuit in individual scoring, although his team was forced to take a tie with Creighton University for the championship.

90 Points in 8 Games. Meyer tallied 90 points in eight conference games to lead by nine the second highest scorer, Maurice Van Ackeren, Creighton's sophomore forward. Sauselle, Washington forward, finished third with 87, and Lynn King, Drake forward, fourth with 65.

Drake and Grinnell, the Iowa members of the circuit, ended in a tie for third place with four victories and four defeats each. The Oklahoma Aggies fared badly, being unable to win any of its eight games.

Hard Work Proves Difficult IRON MAN

The New Manager Finds Little Time
To Devote to the Champion, but Is Not So Busy When It Comes to Being
With Mrs. Mason

By W. E. BURNETT.

CHAPTER 37.

"Tell me," said Coke.
"Cross your heart and hope to die you won't tell!"
"Hell," said Coke, "I don't go around blabbing things."
"All right," said Rose. "I think it's Mrs. Willis."
"What?" cried Coke. "Why, she seems like such a nice little woman."
"You can't never tell," said Rose.
"No," said Coke, "that's a fact."
"That's why I don't know whether he'll be at the party or not. Mrs. Willis is going, but Mrs. Willis isn't, see? So my guess is, that he won't."
"Well, I'll be damned," said Coke. Rose glanced at her wrist watch. "We better be going, Coke," she said.

They got up and Coke went over to pay his bill.
"On the house, champ," said Mike. "Your money ain't no good in here."
"All right," said Coke. "If that's the way you feel about it. But I'm gonna bring you down two rindside seats for the big match."
"Thank you, champ," said Mike. "I'll be there pulling for you."
Coke shook hands with a new bunch of Mike's patrons, then he and Rose went out. Mike put his elbows on the counter and whispered to one of his patrons.
"The champ's O. K.," he said, "but that wife of his ain't worth the powder to blow her up. Damn near every night she's in here with that dressed-up manager of Coke's."

ALTHOUGH Lewis had signed to manage Coke, he paid very little attention to him. In the first place he was busy with the show business; in the second place he didn't know a great deal about the fight game and figured that a champion ought to be able to look after himself. But he was interested in one side of it; he looked after the money. He saw that Coke gave proper testimonials to various manufacturers of nostrums, bargained for boxes with advertising men, and in general made Coke's position as champion a very lucrative one. Where money was concerned, he was hard as iron. In spite of his dignity, he could drive a shrewd bargain, and many men who visited him with the idea of robbing him, came away feeling that they had got the worst of it. But outside of that, he wasn't much help to Coke.

Coke had no very deep feeling of friendship for Lewis. Lewis wasn't his kind. There was something distant about him, something withdrawn, even when he was laughing and seemingly all attention. He just didn't mix. As far as Coke knew, Lewis hadn't a close friend in the world. He seemed stiff and formal to Coke even when they had their coats off, drinking beer. He couldn't unbend. With strangers he was silent and dignified. With people he knew he was affable, but even to Coke the affability seemed forced. Sometimes Coke would sit and look at him, noting the clear, pale complexion, the carefully-kept black sideburns, the long womanish eyelashes. Lewis talked without gestures and without opening his lips very far. He stared intently at you with his pale eyes while he was talking, but when you talked, he looked away, avoiding your eyes. Often Coke felt uncomfortable with Lewis, but he didn't know why. Rose said that Lewis was very "refined" and came from a very "old" family. Coke turned this over in his mind and eventually came to the conclusion that that was the reason he felt slightly uneasy with Lewis. Lewis was educated and refined; he wasn't.

Coke's loneliness increased. Trying to get himself into some kind of shape before he started his actual training, he got up at 6 o'clock, walked, skipped the rope and took various exercises; at 10 o'clock he was in bed. This schedule exactly suited Rose and when she talked with Coke, seldom now, she was careful to praise him for his self-discipline and to assure him that only a man of very strong character could make such an abrupt change in his way of living. Coke was pleased when Rose praised him, but the pleasure didn't last, and as soon as he was alone he again he was as unhappy as before. Often, in spite of the promises he had made, he would beg Rose to leave the stage and just stay with him and help him out. But Rose would tell him that he wasn't keeping his promises, was acting like a kid, and in a few minutes had him feeling ashamed of himself.

COKE fell back on Jeff. Rose was rehearsing a new show and was away from home most every afternoon. As soon as she was gone, Coke would call Jeff up and have him come over, or else he would take a taxi and go after Jeff. Jeff helped him train and they went to shows together. But even Jeff had changed. He was less talkative than he had ever been and he never seemed to understand what Coke was saying, unless they were talking "tight." A week before the start of the actual training, Coke sent a telegram to Jimmy Pappas, the Greek middleweight wrestler, who used to train with him when he was a palooka in Sandusky, O., and asked him to come to New York to act as assistant trainer. The newspapers made quite a story of it, a human interest story. Jimmy accepted the offer.

A few nights before Coke was to leave for Ash Harbor, Long Island, where he was to train, he woke from a sound sleep, laughing, and sat up. He heard him, climbed out of her bed, and shook him.
"What's wrong with you, Coke?" she demanded.
"Wrong with who?" said Coke, befuddled. "I'm all right."
"Why ain't you sleeping?" said Rose. "You know you got to get back in shape."
She was afraid he had heard her come in.
"I been sleeping," said Coke. "What time is it?"
"About 4 o'clock," said Rose. "You just getting in?"
"Lord, no. I been in since 1 o'clock, or maybe a little later. What were you laughing at? You been laying awake?"
"No," said Coke. "I been sleeping like a log. I come to bed at 10:30. I guess I was dreaming."
Rose leaned across the bed and kissed him.

The next afternoon Coke went down to Kid Halloran's gymnasium, and sat in the Kid's office talking to Bat Cahill and Ben Mandl. Mandl thought Coke was a sure thing to win the match with O'Keefe, but Cahill didn't seem to have much to say. Finally, he said:
"They tell me Riley likes the Rattler."
"He wants the short end," said Mandl, laughing.
"Maybe," said Cahill.
Halloran came in and told them that Regan had just arrived, that he wanted to see Mandl.
"Me?" said Mandl. "I wonder what his song is today? He's always got one."
Mandl went out.
"That's a fact," said Cahill. "Regan's the damndest guy I ever seen. Never got a cent."
"Is he borrowing from Mandl?" Coke inquired.
"Trying to," said Cahill.
"That's funny," said Coke. "When George and me was working together he always had plenty of money."
"Plenty, hell," said Cahill. "That guy never had plenty. Riley signed his note for two grand the other day."
"What does he do with his money?" asked Coke.
"Well," said Cahill, "he drops a lot of it to the bookies."
"That's a new stunt," said Coke. "That ain't all." Cahill. "He's got a yen for faro. Crazy man's game."
"George never used to gamble," said Coke. "Except poker."
Cahill sat looking at Coke, wondering what was on his mind. Coke always struck him as being smarter than he acted. This was probably due to the fact that he had always associated Coke with Regan, who had the reputation of being a slicker.
"George is going to hell just as fast he as can get there," Halloran put in.
"I wouldn't say that," said Cahill. "Course he drinks a lot, but he always did, long as I've known him."
"All right," said Halloran. "But he don't seem like the same George to me."

A Stocking Hint

If you are heavy on your feet re-inforce your silk stockings with too pieces made of silk and stitched on either side of the foot. This will save the first wear in case of heavy walkers.
Runs are so perfectly mended now that most women take advantage of this service in the shops. However, runs can be avoided by a little attention—always examine the stocking before putting it on for broken threads. When you see a little loop forming you will know this is the start of a run. Strengthen these at once and the run will not develop.

SKIRTS WILL BE LONGER IN THE SPRING, SAYS GOTHAM WEATHER MAN OF STYLE

By Deming Seymour

The descent of the skirt continues. Here is a forecast of spring fashions—the dress length in the photograph for day street wear, and (above) the destined spring skirt lengths for various occasions. The sketch-limits show the course of skirts since 1923.

SKIRTS are growing still longer. They will be longer this spring than they were last fall.
Hemlines are moving gradually down in spite of the stubborn rebellion the fashion world has known in many seasons—a rebellion waged by women who liked short skirts because they looked younger in them, and had more freedom of motion.

The forecast that skirts will keep on growing longer is not the guess of a designer, nor is it the interested prophecy of a merchant who has long skirts to sell.
It is the conclusion of Amos Parrish, "weather man" of style, whose agents watch what women are wearing in every representative sector of American life and who undertakes, by determining trends, to tell department store buyers and executives throughout the land, at twice-a-year clinics, what the mode of the moment will be six months hence.

Skirts weren't as long last fall as they were alleged to be, Mr. Parrish points out. They were just getting longer. They have been getting longer, slowly but certainly, since 1922.
This spring, he says, the skirt most in fashion for daytime street wear will be of middle calf length, and five to six inches below the knee, and 13 to 14 inches above the ground, depending on the height of the wearer.

Most suits and ensembles for street wear and most daytime dresses and coats will be of the same middle calf length.
Three other lengths will be in fashion, if Mr. Parrish's census and charts are indicative of tendencies:
For active sports wear, dresses of "upper calf length," three to four inches below the knee, 15 to 16 inches above the ground. A few suits and ensembles for street wear and most evening wraps will also be of this length.

For formal afternoon wear, the longer calf length, 10 to 11 inches below the knee. Of this length also will be a few very formal suits and ensembles for street wear and most of the formal afternoon dresses.
For evening wear, dresses of ankle length at one or more places. A few evening wraps will be ankle length and a few will be hip length.

Many women believe that skirts were arbitrarily dropped last fall from the knee to the ankle, but the tendency to longer dresses goes back two years. By April, 1929, most dresses were two inches below the knee, and last October most dresses were "upper calf length."
By spring fashion analyses show, dresses most in fashion will be about two inches longer than last October.

Six different skirt lengths have been in fashion in the last seven years. Four-fifths of the dresses were of ankle length in 1923. Five years later skirts were about as short as women could wear them, at the knee or higher.
Then they began to get longer, and Mr. Parrish avers that women themselves brought about the change. They were tired of the plain straight line effects, and began to add bows and pleats and other details. And circular godets, flat hips and flounce effects didn't balance with short dresses.

Infantile Paralysis

INFANTILE paralysis is listed among the so-called new infections.
While there are cases in medical history which might be construed as instances of infantile paralysis, the first authentic epidemic of this disease occurred in 1811 in Sweden.
Since then the disease has spread throughout the world, becoming particularly prominent in the United States. In 1914 there were more than 15,000 cases and 6000 deaths in the United States.

Infantile paralysis is a disease caused by an agent still unknown, but suspected as being a so-called filterable virus; that is, a disease producing something so infinitesimally small that it will pass through the walls of unglazed porcelain.
More than 95 per cent of the cases affect children under 10 years.

Infantile paralysis is most common during the warm weather. Occasional cases and epidemics have been known in winter. Less densely populated sections seem to develop a larger number of cases. Poor and rich, clean and insanitary, weak and strong alike appear susceptible.

Infantile paralysis usually attacks the individual rather abruptly. The child or adult may show fever, nausea and vomiting, irritability, stiffness of the neck and other muscle involvements. This may last for several days, ending with development of paralysis. Sometimes, however, the disease may begin with muscular paralysis. Milder cases have shown nothing more than drowsiness and stupor.

The disease, it is suspected, is directly spread from person to person, chiefly through the discharges from the mouth and nose. Experimentally, infantile paralysis has been passed from monkey to monkey in this fashion.

A simple and effectual way to mend china is to melt some powdered alum in an old spoon and before it hardens rub it along the edges to be united, press them together and set aside to dry.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.
It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you remove it entirely.
To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning, most, if not all, of your symptoms of dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and remove every sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy entirely satisfies.

An Ailing Child

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight?

Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

"I went to the Canned Goods Fair,
The prunes and the tunes were there—"

HAVE you, too, heard the Cannery racket—the little tin-clad "Sound" operas and jazz numbers so genially welcomed here by the delicatessen set?

To some theatre interests this is a heart-warming clamor. It means economy for them, hence greater profits.
To persons of sound musical taste, it is ludicrous and impudent—an affront to the intelligence and taste of the theatre-going public. They see in the talkies no excuse for resort to Canned Music.
If you, dear reader, are one of those who recognize that machine-made sound cannot take the place of living orchestras and organists in the theatre... if you deplore corruption of musical appreciation and discouragement of musical talent

... if you see no reason why you should forego the pleasure of real music in the theatre to enable an economy whose benefits you do not share, TREAT YOURSELF TO A SIGN OF RELIEF. SIGN THE COUPON BELOW. Then mail it!

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

Marguerite M. Marshall.

CHIVALRY AT LAST.

How long, hard-earned experience, most women learn to be exceedingly wary and suspicious of chivalry.

Usually means a woman finds that a man will be nice to her about all the things that don't really matter—such as opening the door, picking up her handkerchief, giving her a seat in the subway—consider that the same man will consider that his "chivalry" lets him off.

When dealing simple justice to a woman in some question that is important—such as paying her as much as he'd pay a man for the same work, or promoting her as promptly as he would promote a man, she has the logic of the argument.

Woman's invariable tries to make her argumentative defeat by saying blandly: "There, there, little girl, we won't talk any more about it!"

And behold, at last there has been discovered a chivalry that really chivalry. Chivalry that allows woman to get away with murder—or with her best friend's husband, or the spoons, or any other little thing.

We are referring to the perfectly grand law, as applied to women, which is truly and actually a part of the statutes of the States of Wisconsin.

Here follows this purest flower of legal chivalry, as it blooms in Wisconsin's Record of Ordinances:

No female shall be arrested in any action except on a writ of habeas corpus, character or property.

Judge Calvin Stewart of Kenosha, Wis., has just made use of the precious law.

He said Mrs. Angelina Magnus, who had driven through a fire hose, and who thus was liable to a fine or imprisonment.

But quoth the Judge, once in Wisconsin there were "real" men. "Who made laws that really protected women?"

Then he dug up, and applied, the very perfect gentlemanly piece of chivalry above quoted—

And girls, don't you see how, if we only had such a law in New York, it would let us out, no matter what we did?

We would only have to deny that we had committed a WILFUL INJURY—

We didn't mean to shoot our husband—

We were aiming at the lamp post, just to see if we could shoot straight!

We were not wilfully injuring our next-door neighbor by eloping with her spouse—

We thought that he didn't understand her.

And that she'd be better off without him!

As for the spoons, we just borrowed them for a tea party—

Of course, we were not a wilful thief!

Nobody could ever arrest any one of us.

For anything we did with a car, that we ought not to have done—

For we wouldn't mean to do it! We couldn't even be held liable for slander—

Since we never dreamed that what we said about Mrs. Jones would be repeated by Mrs. Smith, and eventually return, with additions and accretions, to plague poor Mrs. Jones.

And to make her lose her job—or her husband.

Innocence, as every woman knows, has always been the longest of feminine leg suits—

And here's a legal lead of chivalry which plays right into her hand. Oh, "there ought to be a law." INDEED, there OUGHT to be a law.

Putting New York women on a basis of perfect guiltlessness, along with Wisconsin women.

No matter what they do, so long as they admit they didn't do it on purpose—

WHAT could be sweeter?

(Copyright, 1930.)

Washing Cotton Blank

WASH in haste and there'll be no need for repentance as far as cotton blankets are concerned. Quick and careful laundering with a minimum of handling is necessary to preserve the tiny air cells that lend warmth to bed coverings of this type.

Dissolve the soap in hot water and add cold water until the temperature is about 110 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit. Immerse the blankets and plunge them in and out of the water, squeezing the suds gently through the fabric without twisting or rubbing. If the blankets are badly soiled put them through two or three soap baths. Rinse thoroughly in clear, warm water, and hang them where they can dry as quickly as possible.

If outdoor drying is practicable, hang the blankets on the line without squeezing and let them drip. Otherwise gently press out the water and hang them in a well-ventilated room to dry. Place them with one-half their weight on either side of the line so as to keep them in shape.

Daily Story FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bomer

The Mice Will Play

THE Little Black Clock got down from his place on top of the desk in the back hall.

When he took John and Peggy each by a hand and told them that he had turned the time way, way back.

It was lucky that Peggy was not in the least afraid of mice, for there were so many of them in this barn.

They were running races, they were romping about, they were dancing, they were nibbling at little meals, while some of the older ones were pulling their whiskers and talking about how clever their children were—when they were sure their children were not listening.

"Aren't they having a wonderful time?" asked the Little Black Clock. "Isn't it fun to watch them?"

It certainly was fascinating in this dingy old barn, and as the children watched, the mice they thought they were quite the most amusing little animals they had ever watched.

"Wait!" said the Little Black Clock. "One of them is going to make a speech."

"Is it an emergency?" the dean asked.

"Well, I have found things harder and harder to pay for," the girl replied hesitatingly.

"My dear child," the dean exclaimed, "if you had only told us last spring we could have given you a scholarship to cover this year's tuition. Your grades justified it, but we felt that the money should be given only to those who needed assistance. Why did you try to put on a front to look as though you had plenty?"

delights children and relieves their colds instantly

NO MESSINESS, NO TROUBLESOME DOSING WITH THIS DELIGHTFUL INHALANT

VAPEX is a boon to mothers because it is so pleasant, convenient and efficacious. For children's colds—so common during the winter, so fraught with peril—Vapex affords swift, easy relief. Just a drop on the children's handkerchiefs—just a drop on their blouses when you send them to school—just a drop at each end of their pillows at night—and they breathe their colds away! The Vapex vapor kills the germs of common colds. . . . The children like Vapex for its crisp, clean odor—bracing as mountain air. You'll like it too. . . . Keep as free from colds as possible. At the first sign of a sniffle or sneeze, buy the $1 bottle of Vapex containing fifty applications at your druggist's. Always insist on V-A-P-E-X, in the trim white box with the green triangle. Don't expect the same results with cheaper imitations. . . . Distributed in the United States by E. Fougere & Company, Incorporated, New York.

SPECIAL OFFER

$100 Allowance for your Old Toaster

Any Kind or Condition on the Famous

FAMOUS BECAUSE—

- 1 Toasts quickly because the heat is directly OVER the toast, and heats it.
- 2 By toasting quickly it never dries toast out and still has crisp the surface to a golden brown and leaves the inside deliciously tender.
- 3 Because sandwiches in FLAT while toasting, the filling can't fall out—the Sunbeam toasts two complete sandwiches at once, and serves them hot—right from the toaster.
- 4 Turn-over Rack turns TWO pieces of toast or TWO sandwiches at one time. It opens wide as you can toast bread, halved rolls, gobs, or sandwiches of any thickness.
- 5 A sanitary toaster—snap-open tray catches all crumbs. Removes instantly.

NEVER have we sold our customers an electric appliance that has offered them more genuine pleasure—more satisfactory service than this Famous Sunbeam Toaster. Women everywhere are praising it highly—you, too, will spread the good news—once you have used it and experienced its wonderful work. That's why we are making this special offer.

U. S. Steel Closes Higher After Selling Down—Further Decline in Spanish Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Speculation for the advance regained control of the price movement in today's stock market after an early period of hesitancy. Scores of active issues were marked up 1 to nearly 8 points, while the gains in specialties ran from 10 to 23 1/4 points. The volume of trading fell slightly below that of yesterday.

In view of the disappointing character of some of the recent business news, many observers were inclined to agree with Secretary of Commerce Lamont that business could return to normal within two months, and that good business was store later in the year. Persistent rumors that powerful banking institutions were planning huge consolidations particularly in the public utility field, had a bullish effect on speculative sentiment.

Trend of Day's News.

Dow Jones reported that operations of the United States Steel Corporation were being maintained between 85 and 86 per cent of capacity for the third successive week, but that there had been a moderate decline in the output of smaller independents. With the exception of the establishment of a new high by Houston Oil and a moderate advance in Standard Oil of New Jersey, this group, as a whole, made little progress.

Directors of Butte & Superior Mining Co. today omitted the usual dividend of 50 cents from profit distribution, but director Kenneth declared the regular quarterly payment. Timken Detroit directors raised the regular annual rate from 40 to 45 cents for the annual payments on United Light & Power class "A" and "B" stocks were increased from 60 cents to $1.

Call Money 4 Per Cent.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent all day, although loans were available in the "outside market" low as 2 1/2.

Time money was quoted at 4 1/2 per cent for all maturities. Bankers' acceptances were reduced of 1 per cent by leading dealers.

New York & Harlem, which usually changes hands in 5 and 10 lots, ran up 29 points to 299 1/2 at close at 295 1/2. I. C. Gas, which showed a net gain of 6 1/2 points at 191, after having sold off 193. Warren Bros. ran up 10 points to 173 1/4. United Carbon, Goodyear Rubber, International Business Machines and A. M. showed net gains of 2 1/2, 4 points to 265, Westinghouse 10 points.

U. S. Steel common closed 1 1/2 points higher at 181 1/2, after having sold down to 179 1/2. Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, Electric Power and Light, Eastman Kodak, National Cash Register, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher and North American Co. were among the group issues to show net gains of points or more.

American Telephone, International Telephone, Montgomery Ward and Packard Motors closed fractionally lower.

Wheat futures, which sold off over 2 cents a bushel in the early trading, rallied sharply, on short covering, closing 1 cent higher to a cent a bushel lower. Cotton was unchanged. Cotton moved 1 to 13 points lower.

Spanish bonds, which broke about 35 cents to a new record low around 34 cents, featured the mixed foreign exchange market. Japanese bonds counted to a new high for the day around 49 1/2 cents. Sterling was held fairly firm around $4.84. Most of the other leading European bonds held steady.

Stock prices, with other tables of market news, will be found on Pages 120, 121, and 122.
